Week of November 9, 2010

Recount date November 16

Aurora will go into recount mode Tuesday, November 16 at 9 a.m. following council's approval last week of a recount request brought forward by Stephen Granger.

Mr. Granger missed getting the last council seat by 21 votes, a seat won by newcomer Paul Pirri.

His request for a recount was approved 5-2 with Councillors Evelyn Buck and Alison Collins-Mrakas voting against it.

Councillor Bob McRoberts was not present and Mr. Granger declared a conflict and did not participate in the discussion.

Tuesday's decision to go ahead with the recount followed nearly two hours of discussion and hearing the views of certain members of the public, with much of the discussion focusing on the process itself, including the accuracy of the vote tabulators.

Although not previously on the agenda, procedure was suspended at the request of Councillor Evelina MacEachern to hold an open forum, which is rarely held in a special council.

First to come to the podium was Rebecca Beaton, who asked questions she had posed to Clerk John Leach via email earlier in the day. Her first question related to cost of a recount.

Apparently an earthquake that was felt in Aurora last summer did some damage to Wells Street Public School. As a result, the York Region District School Board erected a security fence at the school site last week. A structural assessment was conducted on the building following the 5.0 magnitude earthquake that took place during the summer. The assessment found that the earthquake caused significant structural movement to occur at several locations in the building. For the safety of area residents, a security fence was temporarily installed.

Briefly

Parade

Santa's coming back to Aurora and will be the star of the show in his annual Santa Under the Stars parade Saturday, November 27 from 6 to 8 p.m. The parade, expected to attract dozens of floats, will organize itself at Yonge and Orchard Heights Drive and head south along Yonge Street to Murray Drive.

Thousands of spectators, kids mostly, are expected to watch the annual event and children are reminded that if they wish to write to Santa, their letters will be picked up by members of Canada Post just prior to the start of the parade.

Holiday edition

The Aurora Farmers' Market and Artisan Fair Holiday Edition will be held at the Aurora Cultural Centre, (Church Street School) from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on the same day as the Santa Claus Parade. All your favourite Aurora market vendors will be in attendance throughout the Centre, with produce and artisan goods available just in time for the holiday season. Free children's craft activity is planned from 1 to 4 p.m. and the admission is free.

Canvassing

Neighbourhood Network high school student volunteers will be canvassing grocery stores throughout the community this Saturday to help fill the shelves of local food banks.

Neighbourhood Network is launching its first Food Drive as a way to engage students in a hands-on volunteer activity that helps less fortunate neighbours living within the community.

Student volunteers will be at Longo's, Sobey's, Metro and Real Canadian SuperStore in Aurora Saturday, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to collect food donations from shoppers. The collected food will then be distributed to the food bank in Aurora.

Frustrated Councillor Buck claims recount "orchestrated"

Winter may come in like a lion and go out like a lamb, but as the temperatures dropped last week, Aurora's outgoing council appeared to have no intention of following suit.

Tempers flared at the council table during Tuesday's discussion on whether to grant Councillor Stephen Granger's request for a recount.

Approximately 45 minutes into the discussion, Councillor Evelyn Buck raised her hand to express her frustration with the evening's meeting.

"We are here tonight with a single item on the agenda, and that is a request for a recount," she said. "It's 7.45 and yet we have no resolution on the table and yet we've had round the table and a public forum of questions which seem to me to have absolutely nothing whatsoever to do with the simple request for a recount."

"In fact, it seems to me that the entire election is being challenged by members at the table. The questions that are being asked, if you'll forgive me, Madame Mayor, that's how it appears to me, and it appears to be orchestrated."

The word "orchestrated" rubbed several councillors the wrong way and Councillor Evelina MacEachern quickly called a point of order. Mayor Morris then asked Councillor Buck to apologize for her statement, which she refused to do.

"Councillor Buck has accused us of orchestrating this and planning this before we came into this room, which is completely untrue on my part, so I would like her to apologize or I would like her to be asked to leave the room."

Mayor Morris then warned Councillor Buck that she would ask her to leave if she did not apologize, adding that residents were "shaking their heads in dismay" at what Councillor Buck had said.

"I was shaking my head before Evelyn spoke!" yelled one observer from the public gallery.

"I will not leave the chamber," said Councillor Buck. "I will not apologize and I will not leave the chamber."

Mayor Morris then called a recess to consider how to proceed.

"What we're trying to do is very serious and for you to accuse the members of council of orchestrating this and refusing to apologize I think that speaks volumes, and I for one am going to call the meeting to a recess so we can at least consider how we are going to proceed with or without you."

Shortly after Mayor Morris called a recess, Councillor MacEachern, who was still sitting at the council table proceeded to turn her microphone back on and speak loudly to Bill Hogg, who was seated in the audience.

"I am so sick and tired of these allegations and accusations!" she said. "There was nothing orchestrated about this and as far as the open forum, Mr. Aurora Citizen back there, there was nothing orchestrated about that either!"

Councillor claims recount "orchestrated"

would have come forward to the podium. I'm sorry we care about a recount and the next time we hear about this crap! I'm sorry!"
Mr. Hogg and Councillor MacEachern proceeded to discuss the matter further in the lobby.

"This is like nursery school," said one audience member during the recess.

Following Tuesday's meeting Mr. Hogg said he was "shocked" Councillor MacEachern would "start yelling at a resident in the audience with unfounded comments."

"I was not involved in the discussion between her and Councillor Buck," he said. "I was just sitting there."

"The point I did make [in the lobby] is Rebecca Beaton is a friend of hers, Walter Mestrinero is a friend of hers, both of them arrived with pre-written notes and she opened up the procedural bylaw at her request to allow the public input."

On her part, Councillor MacEachern said Mr. Hogg "loudly accused [council] of 'orchestrating'. I heard him from my seat. That was the reason I addressed 'Mr. Aurora Citizen'."

"Ms. Buck and Mr. Hogg...objected to providing residents with the opportunity to address council. They went further and accused council and the participating residents of wrongdoing. As we moved into recess, Mr. Hogg and Ms. Buck's daughter continued with the accusation."

Council resumed shortly after 8 and Mayor Morris afforded Councillor Buck "the opportunity to reconsider the comments she made".

"My comments were that it appears to me," Councillor Buck explained. "I believe I have the right to make that reference without having to apologize for it. I will not apologize for a perfectly reasonable observation."

Mayor Morris then decided to continue the meeting with Councillor Buck still at the table.

"I am going to ask that if you feel you want to impugn council's reputation that you really consider what purpose it would serve, and I would ask that you keep comments to what is before us this evening."

Letters to the Editor

Gaertner takes exception to letter about building

To the editor,

Response to the Letter to the Editor, October 16th - "Renting the hydro building for "pittance" not a good idea".

The decision to sell Aurora Hydro to PowerStream was made in 2005.

I believed it was short-sighted to dispose of such a valuable asset that was generating approximately $900,000 annually for the taxpayer!

I, alone, voted against the sale.

PowerStream continued to use the hydro building.

When council was surprised by a very short notice period that the building would be vacated, the question became what to do with the building.

There were three options: it could be leased, sold or kept for Aurora's possible current and future needs.

With no decision made by the council of the day, 2003 - 2006, it fell to the next council to decide. After lengthy discussions of numerous options council decided it would be prudent to perform a space needs analysis.

This would determine current and future town requirements.

In my opinion it would not be fiscally responsible to sell this asset and then have to acquire land and build for our expanding needs!

At the end of this long, but responsible, process it was decided that the taxpayer's interest was best served by keeping and leasing the building.

In the October 16th edition of The Auroran, Councillor Evelyn Buck stated that a long term lease to the Department of National Defence "for a pittance" is not a good news story.

The following facts will allow readers to judge for themselves.

The 10-year lease provides for a yearly rent of $131,911 with a CPI adjustment for each of the last seven years.

If there is mutual agreement the lease can be extended for a five-year period.

DND will be paying a yearly $25,000 operating and maintenance fee to the town.

DND is also planning to invest $370,000 in upgrades to the building.

Contrary to Councillor Buck's claim that "the building has been neglected", the facts are that Town staff have been routinely checking on the facility and performing any repairs and maintenance when needed.

Staff advise that the facility is structurally, mechanically and electrically sound.

Although it is true that Aurora will not gain any new jobs at the moment, this may change as ongoing discussions with DND take place.

Thank you to town staff for their excellent work that enabled Aurora to keep a valuable asset, for negotiating a respectable rent from a stable client intending to invest in the building and for turning the liability of an empty building into a financial win for the community.

The circus arrives in Aurora: reader

To the editor,

The Circus is in Town! Come one! Come all! Come to Aurora Town Hall for the Special Recount Meeting! See many spectacles:

See the angry lady add "open forum" to the agenda last minute (under the "oh-so-concerned" guise of allowing the citizens their right to speak), but in reality, providing her angry friends the opportunity to pose prepared questions! See them question the validity of a process they know absolutely nothing about! See the angry lady then hiss and scream at the audience! Scary!

See the sorry man pose many more questions and make suggestions to a process he has no right to interfere in! See him make motions, then retract them! See him then make long drawn-out apologies for mysterious reasons! Ohhhh!

See the confused lady ask time and time again to have things re-explained! It's as if she has no idea what's going on at all! Careful folks, she may ask you next!

Finally, see the Great and Powerful Grand Inquisitor use her special secret powers to corrupt and twist Council rules to her own advantage.

See her use her "ice-stare" and repeated clarification upon clarification to try and weaken town staff into submission!

See her become flustered and enraged as staff refuse to give in, prompting her to jump to her feet and demand the taxpayers be thrown to the streets!

Watch as staff try to hide their smiles as she storms from the castle.

Watch out, folks, you never know when or where she'll attack next!

She's got the royal purse at her disposal, and no lawyer is too expensive for her! Run!

Finally see all of them try and set the stage for recount after recount.

See them all rally to the side of the "Ogre of the Market", in an attempt to keep the Ogre within their cruel, creepy fold.

It's a chilling spectacle folks; my advice is don't come alone!

This reader looking for people who want to grow moustaches

To the editor,

I'm joining the growing club of modern gentlemen who believe in the virtues of fine moustachery, immaculate grooming and growing a moustache for Movember.

I am looking for like-minded ladies and gentlemen to join my team to change the face of men's health.

Movember is about raising funds and awareness for men's health, specifically prostate cancer. Close to 4,400 men die of prostate cancer in Canada each year and one in six men will be diagnosed during his lifetime.

Five years ago, a friend and rugby teammate died, who was several years younger than me. Though he did not have Prostate Cancer - he was perhaps typical of men my age, and neglected to pay attention to the signs of his failing health until it was too late.

It's time we did something about this.

The more people I can get on board, the more lives we can impact.

I am asking you to join my team and either grow a moustache as a Mo Bro, or join as a Mo Sista to help recruit other gentlemen.

To join my Movember team, Rugby Canada - Richmond Hill Office, go to movember.com/register/78680 and follow the steps.

Once registered you'll be sent all the information you need to raise funds and start growing as part of my Movember team.

If you're interested in learning more about the work that is being carried out as a result of Movember funds, feel free to read the details at movemberfoundation.com/research-and-programs.

I am also working with our National Men's Rugby Team to help them create a calendar associated with several Rugby Canada sponsors that will help raise awareness for the cause.

book.com/home.php?#!/pages/National-Senior-Mens-Rugby-Calendar-In-support-of-the-MovemberCampaign/126054510785521.

Proceeds from the sale of every calendar will help support Movember and Prostate Cancer Canada. Check out the article on the Rugby Canada website rugbycanada.ca/leagues/newsletter.cfm?clientID=3817&leagueID=0&page=47929.

I hope you join me to change the face of men's health.

I was shot down by Commissioner: reader

To the editor,

I did say in open forum, let voters in Aurora decide the outcome of this negativity inside the town hall.

Immediately I was shot down by our new Integrity Commissioner, saying he disagrees with Mr. Sargent.

Well the voters have decided to voice their opinion on the matter.

That said I wish the new Mayor elect Geoff Dawe and other successful candidates a fruitful transition.

Integrity cannot be forced on you nor can you force it on another.

It is not necessarily inherent in one's personality and make up, but rather a trait learned along the path and over and over in one's life, even when no one is watching.

Let's hope lessons have been learned over the past four years.

Please prove public opinion counts as much as getting a majority of votes on issues that arise in your journey.

There is a great town staff to help direct you in your new beginnings going forward.

Unit manager thanks Aurora

To the editor,

October was Breast Cancer Awareness Month and volunteers with the Holland River unit of the Canadian Cancer Society generously donated many hours offering Pink Ribbons, Thingamaboobs and breast cancer information.

As usual, Aurora residents did not disappoint.

This year several thousand ribbons made their way into the community raising more than $10,000 for research and services.

It's because too many people have a cancer story and too many families are caring for, or have cared for sick loved ones that volunteers come forward and donors join the fight.

We would also like to recognize the Aurora businesses who opened their doors to our volunteers to make this a successful campaign.

Thank you to all our friends.

We hope that this year will bring many new discoveries in the fight against cancer.

Reader happy to stop at all-way corner

To the editor,

Re: Poor Ronnie: All-Way Stops (the Auroran, Page 4)

In your article written for the November 2nd edition, be advised I regularly turn left off of west-bound McClellan Way onto Loraview, and often cross there when walking.

It's always nerve-racking with vehicles tearing down the hill on eastbound McClellan.

I agree, unless they learn to slow down, some of them will slide through on slippery days.

For now, my wife and I are quite happy to stop, then make our turn.

Front Porch Perspective

By Stephen Somerville

Campaign lawn signs, Part II

I produced a column a few weeks back regarding campaign lawn signs.

I had written, in part, that "the one thing that surprised me, however, was that a couple of the council candidates said that in order to save the environment, they would not be using lawn signs.

"In my estimation this is a huge mistake.

"Unless you have a couple of thousand close friends, a council candidate needs to reach out beyond their normal sphere of influence.

"Apart from the reasons for seeking public office, the other important aspect of campaigning is name recognition; I would kindly suggest to those that have not done any advertising, to either get some brochures printed and then distribute them around town or get some signs done, pronto!"

My column elicited a letter from one of the council candidates. It read:

"Mr. Somerville, I read your front porch perspective. As a candidate who has chosen not to use lawn signs, I would like to provide you with my "front lawn perspective".

"I agree that signs are a part of a campaign advertising strategy. Having said that, signs are kin of T-shirts, buttons, balloons and bumper stickers -- they act to reinforce a sense that the candidate has support and remind people of a name, but in themselves, they don't convince people to vote one way or the other."

"Many residents would be happy in a world that was without election signage on PUBLIC property. Not being able to pepper a boulevard with signs may encourage people to look at the issues and not who's got the biggest sign army. It turns our election process into a voting process based on name recognition. What is worse is when one sign goes up there is often a mushrooming effect from the other 20-plus candidates vying for a better exposure on the same corner.

"I have been asking voters to make their vote a vote of substance, not based on signs and free BBQ.

"When I check my mailbox, it's stuffed full of election material. I wouldn't mind if it contained thoughtful and detailed treatises of a candidate's platform, views, and plans. Instead, for the most part, my mailbox is stuffed with election fluff: postcards, flyers, fridge magnets and brochures containing safe umbrella statements; little of which has constructive information other than to shout the candidate's name.

"I spoke for almost 20 minutes to a constituent, not just about the C2 lands, growth, economic development and integrity commissions, but other issues, snow removal and road work. As we parted, he told me why he had asked me all of these questions...He wanted to judge my character.

"What we are offering as service to the public on council is our character, we are asking them to have trust and confidence in us. I believe this trust can only be achieved by talking to people one on one, and not by "vote for me" signs, fluffy brochures or having campaign volunteer teams phoning or door knocking at dinnertime."

I wrote back:

"Good morning and thank you very much for your letter."

"I agree with your statement that signs "act to reinforce a sense that the candidate has support and remind people of a name, but in themselves, they don't convince people to vote one way or the other"

"However, I stand behind what I wrote that "Apart from the reasons for seeking public office, the other important aspect of cam-paing is name recognition...

"People have to know who you are before they will vote for you. A candidate could have an incredible resume of achievement and community involvement, but if voters don't know who they are, then they won't vote for them.

"Character, trust, intelligence, experience, community involvement, among others, are important factors in most people's decision as to who they will vote for. However, with 18 people seeking one of the eight council seats, name recognition is important; name recognition will hopefully cause voters to seek information about a candidate, through reviewing a candidates' brochure or visiting the candidates' website or better yet, maybe even phoning a candidate and ask them questions.

"And at the end of the day, the candidate wants the voter to remember their name when they are in the voting booth.

"Thanks again for the letter and good luck next Monday evening!"

This candidate, and the other one who did not employ any lawn signs or place any ads in the local newspapers, were both ultimately unsuccessful in their council seat quests.

These two candidates spoke well at the candidate forum I was at and from talking to others in the community both of these individuals would have been fine additions at Town Hall.

But not utilizing lawn signs and brochures to get the message out in a crowded field doesn't increase one's chances for electoral success.

By Scott Johnston

KO-D's last flight

The twin engine Wellington bomber flew through the night towards its home base at Marham, England.

Only an hour earlier, it had avoided search lights and flak batteries as it joined other RAF bombers in a raid on the industrial factories on the outskirts of the German city of Munster.

Although the plane was flying westward over The Netherlands, at this stage of 1941 the Third Reich controlled much of Western Europe, and this was still deep within enemy territory.

On board the Wellington was a crew of six young men from England, Canada, and New Zealand.

In the rear gun turret was Sergeant Stanley Edwards, a Canadian from Woodstock, and at 19 years of age, the youngest in the crew.

As the bomber edged closer to England, it was detected on German ground radar.

Not far away, a German pilot and his two crew members scanned the sky in their Dornier night fighter.

Shortly after 2 a.m. they received a radio message with directions to the bomber.

A few minutes later, peering through the black sky over the Friesian Islands, the crews of both planes saw each other.

In the rear of the Wellington, Sgt Edwards called out over the intercom: "Skipper, we have a night fighter on our tail!"

The gunners in the bomber immediately opened fire, as did the men in the Dornier.

The captain threw the less agile Wellington into an evasive manoeuvre, but the fighter dove after it.

In the frantic minutes that followed, the Wellington was mortally hit, as shell after shell found its mark.

With one engine lost and the other damaged, the bomber would never make it back across the North Sea to England. There was only one option left.

Choking back the thick smoke that filled the darkness, the captain warned his crew to prepare for crash positions.

At 2.17 a.m. on July 7, 1941, bomber number KO-D radioed a final message to its base at 115 Squadron: "Am landing in the sea".

Despite search efforts over the next few days, no word was heard in England of the fate of the bomber crew until a few weeks later, when a report came through that Sgt Edwards was a prisoner of war.

The elation of his family back home in Ontario was short-lived, as eventually the truth came out; a mis-identification had been made, and there were no POWs.

The Wellington had crashed into the sea with no survivors.

In early August, the bodies of three of the bomber crew washed ashore in The Netherlands, but no trace of Edwards, the other two men, or their plane was ever found.

This true encounter was by no means an isolated incident, and happened literally every day throughout the six years of the war.

RAF Bomber Command suffered by far the highest percentage casualty rate in World War II of any Allied part of the armed services.

Fifty per cent of all crews lost their lives, and of the survivors, half of them were either wounded or taken prisoner.

So on November 11, spare a few minutes for all of the men and women killed on both sides of this, and every other war, and to think about our brave soldiers currently serving overseas.

Or if you can, join your fellow Aurorans for the services at the cenotaph.

And remember.

And if you see me there, you know I'll be thinking about all of my family members who were involved in both World Wars, including my Uncle Stanley, who I never had a chance to know, but to whom along with his colleagues, I owe so much.

Revised statement of claim expected in lawsuit

Legal Counsel for outgoing Mayor Phyllis Morris were expected to deliver a revised statement of claim Monday to lawyers representing the defendants in her $6 million lawsuit against local bloggers.

"Phyllis Morris is supposed to deliver a statement of claim on November 8," said Jordan Goldblatt who represents the defendants, including Aurora residents Bill Hogg, Richard Johnson, and Elizabeth Bishenden who were named in the suit.

"On Monday they are to serve their statement of claim," said Mr. Hogg. "I guess the important issue there is their notice of action is traditionally not something that would be debated in court."

"It is a generic statement and that is part of the issue they have been playing with here. A statement of claim has to be specific and they have not been specific. They make lots of statements but there is only one specific quoted statement that says here is what they said and they said it on this day.

"It is pretty hard to respond to a generic claim because, if they can't point to a post or a blog or a comment they will say you said on this day, then quite frankly they are just making it up. That is what we have demanded from them, as is our right. Once we see that then we will actually have a better opportunity to respond."

Also looking forward to the statement of claim is the Canadian Civil Liberties Association who expressed interest in intervening in this case last month.

"We will probably need to see [the statement of claim] before we make any decisions," said Cara Zwibel, a lawyer for the group.

If Mayor-Elect Geoff Dawe and the incoming council do vote to cut off taxpayer money for the suit, as Mr. Dawe said he hopes, Ms. Zwibel said their interest would still hinge on what is contained in the statement of claim.

This is also true if the lawsuit is continued by Ms. Morris on a personal level.

"We still have concerns about trying to get the identity of these anonymous people," she said. "They need to establish that there is good reason to delve into private information, so we may very well still get involved, but I think we just need to wait and see what happens."

If the statement of claim is not delivered by Monday, the next step for Mr. Hogg, Mr. Johnson, Ms. Bishenden, et al, is "asking for their money," said Mr. Goldblatt.

"We'll take the position that they have been required to incur defence costs in responding to this and [Ms. Morris] should be on the hook for that if there is no new claim served."

This exhibit will cheer you up

Area art lovers and residents weary of the late grey autumn will be able to get a blast of spring and summer colour when the Facets of Nature art show and sale arrives at the Aurora Cultural Centre.

Facets of Nature Art Show features the work of Schomberg-based artist Marianne Broome who will be in attendance at the exhibition's opening Thursday, November 25 at 6.30 pm.

According to a statement from the Cultural Centre's Jane Taylor, Ms. Broome will conduct an "artist's walk and talk" to enhance the understanding of some of the works in her show.

"With a wide selection of landscapes and abstracts planned for the gallery - and especially her wildly popular acrylic florals - the show celebrates Marianne's passion for the natural world."

Ms. Broome, who has previously exhibited at the Cultural Centre, has also had her work featured at the Canada Blooms Flower Show, Art Aurora, Vaughan's Art in The Park, the McMichael Gallery's annual art sale, and her works featured in galleries across Ontario.

"Painting with nature as my guide is a way of realizing my emotional connection with the natural world and my concern for its preservation," said Ms. Broome. "The sheer beauty of a flower is irresistible, and I enjoy giving others a glimpse of the poetry that each flower holds."

"The large close-up paintings have an intimate quality while portraying the glowing colours and the fragile fleeting nature of the petals."

Ms. Broome's Facets of Nature will continue at the Aurora Cultural Centre through December 22. Admission is free and the gallery is open Tuesday through Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m.

Mr. Leach responded that the cost for a recount would be in the range of $6,500, which would account for the use of the tabulating equipment - including new memory cards - and having technical support on site.

This number does not account for staff time.

Following open forum, Mayor Morris and Councillors MacEachern, Al Wilson, and Wendy Gaertner questioning the process followed by Mr. Leach and his staff.

"If we're going to do this, let's do it right and let's make sure there is no second guessing and no questions," said Councillor Wilson regarding the number of people that will be allowed in the room to observe the recount.

Councillor MacEachern then asked of problems with recounts in the past. Mr. Leach, who was Town Clerk during the problematic 2006 election in Vaughan, said he was not aware of any problems with past recounts that would be anticipated in Aurora's case.

Voters did experience problems at the polling stations, however, argued Councillor Wilson, including those who "had difficulty getting their ballot processed."

Mr. Leach said he had not received a single phone call from any voter that experienced a problem having their votes tabulated by the machine at the polling station.

If someone had an over-voted ballot, the machine would initially reject the ballot and poll clerk could ensure this was the voter's intention, he said. If it was, the poll clerk could then override that feature and feed the ballot through.

"There are two options here - we need to get this done, but we need to have all doubt removed," said Mayor Morris, following a discussion on the recount process. "We don't want disputes after the recount has been ordered and then concerns raised about the process later on."

Councillor Alison Collins-

Mrakas pointed out, however, that it is not within council's purview to direct the process over the Town Clerk.

"You cannot have a motion that directs them to undertake a specific process," she said.

"A number of residents indicated to me that it was a very well run election, they had no complaints, which I thought was probably a first. I have every confidence that Mr. Leach will draw upon his decades of experience and put forward a process that is appropriate."

Before the vote was taken, however, several attempts were made by Councillor MacEachern and Mayor Morris to include in the final wording of the motion something that would indeed direct the process, including the provision that the recount would only be supported if all the ballots were run through one machine with candidates and scrutineers being allowed to review the ballots.

"That, I believe, is outside the jurisdiction of this council and contrary to the [Municipal Elections] Act," said Aurora Counsel Christopher Cooper.

"Could we put in the words of the act itself to be in compliance with, so that we can still allow the public, candidates and their scrutineers the ability to look at the ballots?" asked Mayor Morris. "The act isn't saying they can't look at them."

"I don't believe it is necessary and in fact it would be redundant," countered Mr. Cooper.

At the end of the night, councillors voted in favour of going ahead with the recount and that "Section 61 (5A) of the Municipal Elections Act be upheld".

This section states that candidates, their lawyers, and scrutineers will be permitted to review the ballots before they are processed by the tabulation machine.

While Mr. Leach said at Tuesday's meeting that 61 (5a) pertained to manual recounts, it emerged later in the week, however, that section 42 (3) of the Municipal Elections Act, which deals specifically with electronic tabulation supersedes the other section.

Individuals cited would only be allowed to review ballots that had been rejected by the machines.

Town staff said they are of the opinion that Tuesday's vote remains valid.

PROUDLY SUPPORTING LOCAL SPORTS

Tigers win two of three

The Aurora Tigers got off to a rocky start last week, losing their first of three games at home to the Buffalo Junior Sabres 5-2 Friday night in Junior A hockey action, but they quickly bounced back with two wins in a row.

As a result, the Tigers were able to hold onto fifth place in the north division only two points back of Stouffville, and three short of Huntsville.

Sunday's battle, that at times seemed like a playoff game, saw the Aurora Tigers edge Huntsville at home Sunday afternoon by a score of 2-1.

After giving up a second period goal, Tiger goaltender Michael Mitchell slammed the door shut for the remainder of regulation, overtime and a shootout in recording his second victory in less than 24 hours.

Once again, Daniel Lisi emerged as the hero scoring one of two goals in the shootout to give Aurora the victory. Scoring leader Jordan Gidaro scored the other one.

On Saturday night, Aurora handed the Burlington Cougars a 6-3 setback, after rebounding from their 5-2 loss to Buffalo Friday.

Aurora was sparked by two goals from Gidaro and strong goaltending from Mitchell in a 6-3 victory at the Wave Twin Rinks in Burlington.

Also scoring for the Tabbies were Ryan Johnson, Captain Brett Priestap, Andrew Secco and Jarrett Fennell with an empty-netter to secure the victory for Aurora.

This week, Aurora travels to Stouffville Thursday night for a game that begins at 7.40 p. m., then host the Orangeville Flyers Sunday afternoon at the Community Centre.

That game begins at 2.30 p.m.

Protect Yourself and Your Family With Critical Illness Insurance

Submitted by Michael P. Comeau
Financial Advisor

A major illness can be a huge emotional burden for you and your family. Don't let it become a financial burden, too. Protect yourself against the potentially high costs of a serious illness with critical illness insurance.

Without this insurance, the odds are against you. Statistics show that at some point in their lives, most Canadians will face a life-threatening illness. If you're the major income earner in your family, that's bad financial news. In fact, a major illness can place a greater burden on your family's finances than your death.

Critical illness insurance provides a one-time tax-free lump sum payment if you are diagnosed with an illness covered by the policy. There are no restrictions on what you can do with the money, so it can be used to cover health care costs, personal care services, lost income while you're unable to work or for any other purpose.

Of course, you may have other types of insurance to help with the costs of an illness. Many Canadians have disability insurance policies, for example. But while disability and critical illness insurance complement each other, your disability policy won't pay benefits if you are still able to work. Even if your illness prevents you from working, you might have to wait a number of weeks for your benefits to kick in. And they may be limited.

Critical illness insurance offers coverage whether you're able to work during or after your serious illness. Policies vary, but coverage typically includes cancer, heart attack, stroke, multiple sclerosis, kidney failure, blindness, Parkinson's disease, Alzheimer's disease and other serious life-altering illnesses.

These plans are offered by life insurance companies, and are generally available to those up to age 65 and in good health. You may be able to renew your policy until age 75 or for your lifetime.

Coverage generally ranges up to $1 million, although it may be possible to buy a larger policy. The full benefit is available even if you recover from the illness. But you must usually live for at least 30 days after an illness is diagnosed before benefits are received.

When buying critical illness insurance, shop carefully. Coverage, exclusions, benefits and prices can vary. Be sure that you aren't excluded from coverage because of age or health-particularly by a previous illness.

And don't look at critical illness insurance on its own. It should be part of an overall insurance plan that includes disability, long-term care and life insurance. By ensuring you're well covered, all your family's financial needs will be met in the event of unexpected circumstances.

Your financial advisor can help determine the level of coverage that you need, and recommend a plan to meet your requirements.

Hilton Alexander Byrne
 May 10, 1990 - October 30, 2010

Hilton was young, vibrant and so passionate about his sports. While out longboarding on October 11, 2010, Hilton suffered a tragic accident. After battling his injuries for 20 days, he passed away peacefully at St. Michael's Hospital in Toronto on Saturday, October 30, 2010.

Brother to Katherine Byrne and Georga Byrne, son of Penny Hounsborne and Timothy and Kellie Byrne.

Our family would like to thank everyone for all their love and support through this very difficult journey with Hilton. He will be so sadly missed by his family and friends.

Hilton will forever be remembered by his longboarding family as the guy who was always ready to shred on a moments notice, always grinning from ear to ear on his longboard.

At 3 p.m. on Friday, November 5, 2010 at the United Church, 15186 Yonge St., Aurora, a formal service was held. A celebration of Hilton's life followed at 4 p.m. at The Mansion, 400 Industrial Pkwy S., Aurora.

Contributions were taken at the door of The Mansion for The Hilton Byrne Foundation, an organization being set up to supply helmets to new boarders and to assist with setting up permitted road time to ensure the safety of all riders, would be appreciated.

God bless, sweet dreams and don't let the bedbugs bite...we love you Hilti...you are forever in our hearts.

Senior Scape

Membership meets Friday

By BRIAN WARBURTON

A debate concerning a proposed and revised Permanent Liquor License application, by the Aurora Senior Association (ASA), will be the subject of a Special General Membership meeting Friday, November 12th, at 4.30 p.m.

Following the presentations and the questions and answers component, votes when cast will reflect educated personal preference and decision, and the majority of votes will carry the decision, legally binding the ASA, to act accordingly.

Worth noting is a flu clinic in the Skylight Gallery at the Aurora Town Hall, from 2 to 8 p.m., Thursday, November 11th.

One of the delights for seniors at this time of year is the Magna Christmas Show, and details should be available in the Seniors' Centre during the second week of November.

Past shows have proved entertaining and popular with Magna providing quality entertainment, and always to a full house! Free tickets will be on a first come basis with two tickets per person allowed.

With the article about the Christmas tree decorations in the last Auroran, a newly awakened interest emerged in participation.

The Seniors' Centre is truly a social phenomenon, encouraging seniority to persevere in a world where solitude can blight good lives.

It is not for trifling reasons that the Seniors' Centre perseveres in a world where good society is not always available, but among the seniors, good society is the norm, and provides a vibrant level of comfort.

Dynamic members produce special interests and the Silver Star Entertainment Group is among those of whom I speak.

The Silver Stars reach out with welcoming arms to the experienced and inexperienced alike.

If you have the entertainment bug and talent, the Silver Stars will find a way to produce it on stage.

The Silver Stars Drama Club have turned their attention to comedy, song and dance, skits, short plays, and possibly more.

They will produce a World War Two fighter pilot is guest speaker

Graham Kennedy, a World War II fighter pilot, will be the guest speaker at the Aurora Probus Club's next meeting, Wednesday, November 10th.

He will describe the "Memory Project" which, each year, sees several thousand veterans visiting elementary and high schools across Canada.

Mr. Kennedy is a member of the Aurora Probus Club.

The meeting, held at the Aurora Legion, begins at 10 a.m., with the speaker's presentation expected to start at 11 a.m.

For further information, call Bob Staley at 905-727-5017.

"Comedy Hour" Sunday, December 5th, at 2 p.m. Room exists for more talent, so possibly, you can perform on stage or behind the scenes and if you can, contact Judy Buchanan at Judy202@rogers.com and maybe your star will shine.

Friday was an open invitation for prospective members to visit the Seniors' Centre and to view the activities and programs that fascinate more than 1,000 senior residents of Aurora.

The membership, in a town the size of Aurora, is impressive and is expected to grow as the so-called "baby boomers" become involved.

Not a day goes by without a full complement of activities in progress.

The activities, programs and special programs such as the choir and entertainments, and all the things performed on stage for the amusement of an audience continue as avenues along which, any member is welcome.

Most members prosper in ways often unseen, investing the season of seniority with a kind and gentle quality of benign good living.

Additional capabilities learned in the Seniors' Centre extend individual capacity to the extent of the new knowledge.

Each idea pursued adds to the dignity of the centre and adds to the sparkle and vivacity of members' accomplishments.
