Three swim clubs united in allocation

Everyone into the pool!

That seems to be the consensus of the town's three competitive swim clubs, who now appear united in finding a solution to the ongoing pool allocation issue.

At Tuesday's Aurora Council meeting representatives from Ducks Swimming, The Master

Ducks and the Aurora Selkies, were all scheduled to speak.

Instead, David LeClair stood up in front of dozens of members on hand from each club.

He told council he had met with Swim Ontario and representatives of each of the swim clubs. Speaking on their behalf, he wanted to advise council that the groups were now working together to come to a mutual resolution to the issue.

This was a far cry from the discussions to date on this subject, in which the Selkies, the newest swim club in town, have Aurora Mayor Phyllis Morris; members of the Church Street School Cultural Centre Board of Directors; Neil Garbe, Town CAO; and key staff members were on hand for the official signing of the Church Street School Cultural Centre service agreement and lease last week.

The service agreement signed by the Town and the Board of Directors officially provides the Church Street School Cultural Centre Board with the authority to operate the Centre on behalf of the Town of Aurora.

While the Town remains property owner and will provide an annual operating budget through the provisions of the agreement, the Board, now an official not-for-profit corporate entity with charitable status, will be responsible for the full management and operation of the

The newly formed Board of Directors will follow objectives developed by the Town and the Centre, as a means for fulfilling the Centre's primary purpose as set out in the agreement; "to provide guidance for the development and provision of cultural activities and services to give recognition to the importance of cultural opportunities within the Town of Aurora and the contribution that culture makes to the quality of community life, and to provide a framework within which it can be achieved with order, consistency and consultation."

First order of business for the new school will be the induction of the new Board of Directors of the Aurora Chamber of Commerce.

That event is slated for Thursday, June 25 at 5.30 p.m.

Since many of Aurora's committees contained a greater proportion of unelected members, she therefore Councillor Evelyn Buck's felt the town was not in compliance with the regulations.

However, the debate ended up being pretty onesided, as most members accepted the advice of Town Solicitor Christopher Cooper.

He said that the Act didn't state that committees must have 50 per cent elected officials, just that when they do, certain sections of the Act would apply to them.

He noted that in his considered opinion, the municipality was in line with the Act.

Gas prices back to a buck again

As of Friday, a story on the internet noted that crude oil futures dropped below $72 a barrel, erasing three days of gains, as the dollar rebounded.

Light, sweet crude oil for July delivery recently traded at $1.30, or 1.8 per cent lower at $71.38 a barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange, sliding to an intra-day low of

Crude settled at $72.68 Thursday, the highest level since

Begs the question: how come gas topped the $1 a litre mark at most Aurora pumps Friday?

Gas hasn't been that expensive since last October when it was up well over the buck mark.

Then it dropped way down, and suddenly, I could afford to drive a car again.

Hey, I remember when gas was 43 cents A GALLON!! True, that was a few years ago.

That would work out to about a dime a litre. Now it's back to the buck mark.

Saturday, the price was $1.01 a litre.

Some get on my case for using a car at all, but when they provide transit service from my dead end street to my office (five kilometres or three miles, so I ain't walking, either) then I'll consider that, as well.

However, buses use gas, too, don't they?

Someone is making a lot of money here, and it ain't me.

THE BEAR

I was on my way to Ottawa when I got the phone call about a bear wandering around the streets of Aurora

The Ottawa trip, by the way, got cancelled when I arrived in Port Perry. Thankfully, there's a casino there so I was able to get over it with little or no pain. But that's another story.

What amazed me, listening to the radio, was the amount of misinformation being thrown around by various radio stations.

One had the bear at the corner of Mark and Wellington. Pretty tough, since both streets run in the same direction. One kept saying how "dangerously" close the bear was to the GO Station. Not. This urge to be first rather than right really bothers me, but we're not much better, I guess.

The Auroran said it was in a tree in the Wellington-Wells area, which was closer to the truth, but most reports I heard after that was the bear was in the Wellington-Larmont area, a block east of Wells Street.

Norm Weller and David Peirce, both residents of Larmont supporting the local busi-Street, reported seeing the bear cross the street before heading for the tree.

The 200-pound "youngster" has been named the "Wellington Bear" but I like the name "Yogi" better.

SYMPATHIES

The Auroran staff joins with hundreds of others to offer sympathies to Wendy Browne, whose husband, Nick, died at home last week.

The shock of his death still reverberates through the community.

300 people were on hand at the Aurora Legion More than Friday as a special service celebrated the life of the can?

Led by Captain Brian Bishop and Ken White, the Legion roofing company that provided a full dress uniform service for Nick, and attendees heard heart-felt words from friends Glen Haywood, James Warring and Steve Renaud.

Machell's Corners by Scott Johnston

Front Porch Perspective

By Stephen Somerville

Due to a recent Toronto Star article I am returning to a topic that I first wrote about more than two years ago.

Roy Romanow, former premier of Saskatchewan and former commissioner on the future of Health in Canada, is the founding chair of the Institute of Wellbeing.

A couple of years ago he began an ambitious project, called the Canadian Index of Wellbeing, or CIW.

The headline of the Star column at the time was "Measuring what counts to society" and the article was about "the need for a more holistic way to measure societal progress - one that accounts for more than just economic indicators such as the Gross Domestic Product and takes into account the full range of societal, environmental and economic concerns of citizens".

While we have a long established set of narrow economic indicators, the article pointed out, "we haven't had a clear, coherent and compelling alternative to balance the dominance of economic measures".

While still very much a work in progress, the CIW seeks to "chart and report on how our lives are getting better or worse in areas that matter to us: health, standard of living, environmental quality, the way we use our time, education and skill levels, the vitality of our communities, participation in the democratic process, the state of our arts and culture".

I further wrote at the time that it is an interesting concept and one that I believe should be investigated further.

Well, two years have passed and Mr. Romanov has come out with his first report.

Some interesting findings as reported in the Star article:

"For example, from 1981 to 2008, after-tax per capita income rose 28.8 per cent, but it rose much faster for the top income earners than the rest of us. Over the same period, unemployment decreased slightly, but changes in Employment Insurance reduced the number of unemployed who qualified for benefits. Canadians are also getting fatter; in 1994, 12.7 per cent were obese, compared with 16 per cent in 2007.

Measuring what counts

"But there is also good news. The incidence of depression is down, somewhat. So is the national crime rate, which dropped by 30 per cent between 1991 and 2006.

"The goal is to inform and promote policy decisions that are based on solid evidence, and that will improve the quality of life for all people. The aim is not to replace GDP, but to offer a more holistic view of wellbeing."

Something similar to the CIW may be needed in Aurora.

What type of information or metrics should be included in such a document?

I suggest having performance measures in each of the following broad categories: financial, community health, individual wellness, and say, environmental sustainability.

The individual metrics under the above four categories could include things like: number of people using the food pantry, number of affordable rental housing units, percentage of children participating in community sports, percentage of voter turnout, percentage of high school kids not completing high school, number of people using the public leisure complex and public skating/public swimming, percentage of people who possess a library card and capacity utilization of the VIVA buses in

The key is that the numbers and trends should provide us with a well-balanced view of how our community is doing.

The statistics alone certainly don't tell the whole story, but they are the basis upon which to begin any meaningful dialogue and real debate about whether we are meeting the priorities of this community or even if we have the right priorities in the first place.

If, for example, all the scorecard targets are met, then our community should be in good shape. However, in the event that all targets were met and the community did not seem any better off, this would signal that it's time to rethink the metrics being

The scorecard should be easy to read and to understand. It should have a number of charts and graphs, and not a lot of text.

The trends would also show how we compare against other similarly-sized communities. It should also include comparisons against Newmarket. Although Newmarket has a much larger population than Aurora, there is a commonality, based on proximity, community make-up and shared interests.

It would be nice if the folks at the Aurora Town Hall produced such a document. But it would be even better if our fellow citizens published this information. This committee could be comprised of 10 to 15 citizens, including representatives from the Aurora Chamber of Commerce, various ratepayer associations, and volunteer organizations.

The Aurora Community Wellness Index (ACWI) could then be published quarterly in The Auroran.

Any measure that can be utilized to both further educate and interest our fellow citizens in improving our community should be explored.

Inside Aurora

By Scott Johnston

The Aurora councillor was just picking up his order at the local coffee shop, when he saw a colleague sitting at a table.

"Hi, Jill" (note: names changed to ensure anonymity). "Hey, Larry." Motioning to the binder in front of her she asked, "you ready for this week's Council meeting?"

"Yeah," Larry said, taking a seat. "I haven't had a chance to look at the agenda, but let me tell you, I'm really glad the pool allocation policy has been deferred for three months. We would never have been able to make a decision that pleased everybody, and I don't think I could have handled another debate on that subject.'

"Um...then I guess you really haven't read this week's agenda yet, have you?'

"No. Why? Wait," Larry said, slapping his forehead with his hand, "don't tell me the pool allocation policy is back?"

"Well, an allocation policy is back, but it's not for pools." "What is it for? Hockey? Soccer? Baseball?"

"Teeter-totters."

Larry's eyes went wide. "Teeter-totters?! You mean like you see in playgrounds?"

"Yeah." Jill confirmed.

"You're kidding, right?" His fellow councillor shook her head in response.

"That's absurd!"

"No, apparently this is a real issue," she said, flipping to page 253 of her binder. "You see, there's a playground that the kids in an adjacent school have been using for a long those children want to play there." "Well, why don't they both use them?"

"There are only two teeter-totters, and they're used most of the time. The two groups can't agree on sharing, so they want the town to come up with an equitable allocation poliсу."

time. But a new daycare centre has opened nearby, and now

"I don't think it's fair, myself," Jill continued. "Existing users shouldn't be pushed out just because a new group has come on the scene. Since the current facilities are limited, I think new users should use the off-peak hours."

"What constitutes off-peak hours in a playground?"

"According to studies done by the Parks Department," Jill replied, looking at her notes, "32 per cent of the time outside of lunch and recess is unutilized."

"The Parks Department has studied this?" asked Larry, in amazement.

"Well, they kind of had to because council asked for a report on it. I think you missed that meeting."

"Then why don't we just install some more teeter-totters?" "They're not cheap," Jill replied, "and we have to be accountable to the taxpayers. It doesn't make economic sense to add new ones if the ones we have are not being fully utilized."

Allocation policy revisited

"Maybe we could charge for peak hours, or approach the user groups to raise money to defray the costs of new ones?" Larry suggested, taking a sip from his coffee. "They could sell lemonade or something."

"Yeah, but there's no money for teeter-totters in this year's town budget, and we can't get the kids to fund the whole project. That wouldn't be fair."

"I was speaking to Councillor Hobbs," Jill continued, "and she said that we shouldn't be looking at these facilities in isolation, anyway. It's no good working on a teeter-totter allocation policy, for example, when what the town needs is something that covers all playground equipment: swings, slides, sandboxes...everything."

"A full Playground Equipment Allocation Policy, eh? That makes sense.'

"I'm not sure that's the way to go, but I guess we'll discuss it at length, then send it off to staff and the Leisure Services Advisory Committee for review. But I do know one thing for

"What's that?" asked Larry.

"Whatever we decide, we won't please everyone."

Staff shouldn't refute political decisions: reader

To the editor,

I've objected before but to no avail. The practice of inviting staff to refute points made in a political debate is fraught with potential for friction between elected and appointed officials.

Our new solicitor was invited to advise whether the Chief Administrative Officer is a statutory officer. I had made the statement in a "The Buzz Around Town" post that the job is not a statutory function. Mr. Cooper cited a regulatory clause he claims gives the CAO the status. I continue to contend it does not.

On Tuesday, during the debate on a resolution, he was asked to advise if town advisory committees conform to the intent of the Municipal Act. He said they do. I say they don't.

Councillor Wendy Gaertner referenced Mr. Cooper's nine years' experience as a municipal solicitor. I cited my 45 vears' experience of practice in Town of Aurora affairs.

When the minutes of the May 12th meeting were challenged, Mr. Garbe stated he and Mr. Cooper had spent considerable time deliberating how the record should be Cooper are not responsible for keeping the record. It is the statutory responsibility of the Clerk.

Mr. Cooper tried quietly to stop unsubstantiated and unfounded allegations from being presented in council in the first place. But when it suits her, the mayor is not inclined to hear anything that might deflect her from her path.

So, the situation does not improve.

On Tuesday, I presented two resolutions. Notice had been provided. The motions were in writing and circulated with the agenda in accordance with procedure. proper Everything was very orderly. That was a first. Almost as if an unseen closed session by Mr. hand was directing the play.

I had read of a partnership, claimed by Sher St Kitts, between the July 1st Canada Day Parade and the Aurora Rotary Club.

It occurred to me, if town staff could not obtain Mr. Garbe and Mr. an accounting for the event from the sub-committee, perhaps Aurora Rotary might be willing to share.

We had the report from the June 3rd "Emergency" meeting called by the Mayor to deal with the "The Buzz Around Town" post.

The disconnect between what actually happened on May 12th and how it appeared in Council Minutes was the subject.

> Mr. Garbe has affirmed staff have no ability to require an accounting from the committee for proceeds derived from the July 1st Canada Day Awareness event held at the Legion in mid-March.

> Mr. Elliott reported the only town funds involved were $400 for four tickets for the mayor and three councillors to attend the event in 2008. And $150 for six tickets for the mayor and five councillors to attend in 2009. He noted the cheque issued from the treasury for this year's tickets was returned, with direction the money be spent on flags for the parade.

Not noted was who the cheque was payable to, who returned it and when.

The big problem now is $10k of taxpayers' money was budgeted to pay for the July 1st Canada Day Parade after Sher St. Kitts informed council..."No money...no parade".

Ms St. Kitts is a voluntary parade organizer. With a number of other citizens, she serves on a sub-committee of the Town Leisure Services Advisory Committee, chaired by Councillor MacEachern.

The voluntary effort John Mascarin, the required for the parade, is raising sufficient funds to pay for it. With $10k of taxpayers' money to finance it, the effort hardly quali-

However, council has previously been assured, the town's procedures will be enforced to ensure expenditures are properly controlled.

For the life of me, I can't see how.

Considering complete disassociation, independence and unaccountability of that sub-committee with any part of the town's administration.

And Mr. Elliott's clear notion of what is his role and what isn't.

Not the best way to support school

To the editor,

During the previous four weeks I have been approached on numerous occasions to support retention of Wells Street Public School.

On several of the occasions the proponent proceeded to attempt to castigate me for not supporting retention of the school.

That is not, in my opinion, the best method to garner support, and, in fact, detracts from what the proponent may wish to say.

Several of the proponents seem to think their opinion is the only one that matters, and I am not entitled to my opinion.

Fortunately such is not the case and although I am in strong favour of retaining historical buildings, I am not in favour of retaining nor restoring Wells Street Public School.

* I have lived within a block of the school for more than 25 years and my wife for more than 50 years and thus we have every right to comment.

Neither my wife nor I nor any of our children attended Wells Street Public School, so I have no emotive reasons for saving the school.

I have a brother-in-law who attended the school for three years, more than 50 years ago, but he has no interest in saving the school.

* Several people have informed me the school is an historical site. Since such designation has not been passed by the Town of Aurora by way of a by-law, it could be a start to preserving at least the easterly facade which is the only architectural component of historical interest.

* I am perturbed that a small cadre of ratepayers want to add $10 million or so dollars to my taxes. This is of the same ilk as the "slalom" course constructed on Mark and Walton Streets for an interest group of which I am not a member, but I pay.

From all of the information printed and reported to the school board there is more than sufficient pupil spaces in Aurora, without using Wells Street Public School.

Even if no pupils are returned to Wells Street Public School opening the school for any Board of Education use, utilizes operational funds which impacts on all pupils in York Region by lessening the amount available for other schools.

* There is a secondary school co-op program in which students engage in military training for school credits and they gather at the Armouries every week leaving and returning, I assume from Camp Borden.

The Armouries is also an "historical site" but not the best useable facility for all the programs carried on in it.

However, if the School Board could see its way clear to sell the building to the Canadian Forces (or even donate it) it could be well used for Canadian Administration; Forces another 15 parking spaces could be obtained and quite a few more when the GO parking garage is completed; the adjacent streets and fields of the Armouries and Wells Street Public School could be utilized to better advantage.

The costs would be spread over the provincial and/or federal tax base to preserve an Aurora historical attraction, without just impacting on my educational taxes

Aurora Major midget ball team sweeps St. Thomas tournament

Paced by the stellar pitching of Nick Cascone, Corey Jeffery, Tyler Clements, Johnstone, A.J. Spencer Brown and Justin Huckvale, the Aurora Jays Major Midget team swept all five games they played at the St. Thomas Midget baseball tournament held recently at Emslie Field in St. Thomas.

In the opening game, the Jays blanked the Clarington Orioles 8-0 with Nick Cascone getting the win after pitching five innings of shutout base-

Offensively the highlight was a two-run opposite field homer hit by Mike Renfer in the third inning which provided the Jays with as much offense as they needed to win the Battle of the Birds.

Kyle Paxton also pitched in with his bat going two for four with a run batted in.

The next morning, Spencer Johnstone pitched four innings against the North London Nationals, striking out five and giving up one run, to lead the Jays to a 9 -5 win.

A.J Brown pitched the last two innings of the game while chipping in at the bat with an RBI single. Leading the way offensively was Mike Renfer who kept his hot bat sizzling going three for four with a dou-

In the nightcap that day the against London Tecumsehs, the Jays were led by Corey Jeffery's five-inning, one run, seven-strikeout pitching performance as they crushed the Tecumsehs 11-2.

Jack Goldberg went three for four with two RBIs and Jake Boyle had two hits in three at bats with an opposite field double and a RBI.

In the semi-final game the next day, the Jays pounded the Ajax Spartans 17-7 with Justin Huckvale and Nick Cascone sharing the pitching duties. Cascone picked up his second win of the tournament. Offensively, Marc Cascone led the way with his four for five, six RBI performance.

Michael Gray also contributed going two for three with a walk and a double.

Preparing for the annual Polo For Heart event this weekend is Aurora's Cliff Sifton. The 30th anniversarv of the polo event will be held at the Gormlev Polo Centre, located on Leslie Street, just south of the Bloomington Sideroad. The three-day party gets underway Friday, June 19, and continues through Sunday. Polo for Heart began in 1979 by Colonel Michael Sifton, a member of the Toronto Polo Club. The event has since grown in scope and size and attracts thousands of people each year. More than 100 volunteers work to present the three-day activity, which has raised more than $4 million to date for heart and stroke related charities. Doors open daily at 11.30 a.m. and there are attractions both on and off the field.

How Aurora can benefit from the bear

To the editor,

Re: A bear in Aurora (The Auroran, Page 1, June

Well, well, now that Aurora has been visited by yet another unwelcome hairy quest, (the bear), I can hardly wait for the reaction courtesy of the usual suspects.

Local protector of wildlife and environmental gadfly, David Tomlinson will immediately lead a delegation before council to demand that the town preserve part of the fast dwindling natural areas for a bear hibernaculum, complete with pic-a-nic baskets and free of Ranger

Council, for its part, will call an emergency meeting to swiftly deal with the situation. It will produce a new bylaw that will either ban bears in Aurora, or licence them.

Either way the town's crack team of by-law enforcement officers will be less than pleased.

As it is, they can hardly keep up with all the infractions they see every day of all the current by-laws. At least those infractions they can see through the front window of some of Aurora's many coffee shops.

Council watcher Nigel Kean will be keeping a close eye on all deliberations by council regarding this issue, to ensure that the meetings do not go past his bedtime.

Meanwhile, the town's Treasury department will spring into action to decide if the bear can be considered a resident of town.

They will then establish whether charging it property taxes is a viable possibility.

Or if the bear can be considered an asset of the town, perhaps naming rights can be sold to a deep pocketed developer who wishes to utilize the bear for a selling point for their next housing development.

At very least they may be able to attach to the bear a sewer levy, in case bears don't actually "do it" in the woods as everyone believes they do.

Mayor Morris will simply blame the entire situation on the former council.

She will, of course, be quoted saying this as she is on her way to a local medical clinic to be treated for selective amnesia which seems to have afflicted her since some time in early November of 2006.

Former mayor and on again/off again Liberal candidate Tim Jones, a card-carrying member of Team Dion, will announce that even if the bear declares its intention to seek the nomination to represent the Liberal party in the next election in the riding of Newmarket-Aurora, he will not rescind his earlier support for Mayor Black of King. Apparently Tim is less afraid of the bear than Mayor Black

And finally, in conjunction with the Ministry of Natural Resources, the town will release information to help residents protect themselves and their pets from future nasty encounters with wandering bears. First, to reduce the likelihood of startling a bear whilst out and about, residents will be encouraged to attach small bells to their person and their pets to announce their presence to unsuspecting ursine interlop-

Secondly, should carry pepper spray to ward off bears that come too close.

Thirdly, and most importantly, residents must learn how to identify signs of bear activity in their neighborhoods, primarily by the paw prints and droppings.

The former can be reliably identified only by trained professionals.

The latter, however can be recognized by anyone by simple examination, because bear droppings usually smell of pepper, and have small bells in them.

Time to stop historic building destruction

To the editor,

To the editor,

I am absolutely shocked and dismayed at the lack of respect and responsibility of the elected Trustees at the Board of Education to even consider being party to the destruction of an important piece of history

Trustees: you're elected by the people - have the guts to stand up and be counted and represent what the people of Aurora have asked you to do!

I seriously question the real reasons why the School Board is so bent on destroying the Wells Street Public School.

I have been a resident of York Region for a long time and bit by bit our Canadian Heritage buildings are disappearing in favour of glass and concrete architectural monuments, while we've all sat by and said, "oh well".

Now it's time to put a stop to it.

Browne, Robert Nicholas, "Nick" - It is with great shock and extreme sorrow that the Browne family announces the passing of Nick on Monday, June 8, 2009. With his warm and accepting ways, Nick had the ability to make everyone feel like his very best friend. All who were fortunate enough to know him will miss Nick's zest for life, his contagious laughter and his loving spirit. Next to his wife and soul-mate, Wendy (Ralph), their two sons, Wesley and Jeremy, and their daughter, Blair, Nick was also passionate about golf, fishing, baseball and strumming tunes with close friends. Son of Beryl Cooper and the late Ted Browne, Nick is also survived by his sister Edwina Ross and husband Keith, his nieces Jennifer, Meagan and Laura Ralph, Stacey Montegue, Vicky and Teresa Sheppard, Roxanne Warsaba; his nephews Adam Ross and Jason Sheppard; his dearest cousin Doug Copley and family, and cousin Trevor Copley; his step family David, Douglas and Pam Cooper. Nick is predeceased by his older sister Sue Sheppard. Sadly missed by his "outlaws" Dave, Annie and Susie Ralph, and his friends and business associates here, there and everywhere. Friends were welcomed at their home on Thursday, June 11th from 4 - 8 p.m. A memorial service and celebration of Nick's rich life was held on Friday, June 12th at 2 p.m. at the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 385, Industrial Parkway North, Aurora. For this occasion, friends were encouraged to bring musical instruments to jam and sing along in the true spirit of Nick. It was one of Nick's desires to continue to make improvements and renovations to Legion Branch 385; therefore, in lieu of flowers, the family requests that any donations be made at either of the gatherings to the Royal Canadian Legion, Branch 385. Arrangements were entrusted to Thompson Funeral Home, Aurora. 905-727-5421.

Street festival attracts Aurora's seniors

By BRIAN WARBURTON

Larger than life and rousing a sleepy Aurora on a cool Sunday in early June was the World's Longest Street Festival on the World's Longest Street.

The event, unchallenged in length and conception, offers an extraordinary display and variety of articles for sale, is magnificent in length, superb in organized set up and take down of booths, and offers an extravaganza of interesting tables to occupy any normal mind far longer than one day.

This sale stretching most of the length of Yonge Street through Aurora, and which is well promoted with marketing skills by enterprising mercontinues to chants, attract participation by seniors of the ASA who manned the same two spaces occupied for the past several years.

About 20 seniors the manned spaces through changing shifts during the day, while countless visitors many of them seniors, and many belonging to the ASA, visited the booths, constantly raising senior spirits.

The event appeared to be well staffed with vendors of character, bold and intrepid, who rose to the challenge of competent participation with an up and display of merchandise.

And if my words lack tion of the museum. modesty, they do not lack support, which throngs of Aurorans, and experience many more from places a long way out of town and from across the border, who agree.

From Wellington in the north to Murray Drive in the south, the mass of people, wended their way. Some paused occasionally to look more carefully vendors and traders waited and watched, eager to recognize interest and cater to whims which could and did, translate moted by councillors past swiftly to sales.
