Outer space visitor?

Looking for all the world like a dead, bloated cow, or a crashed space ship, Aurora's 40-year-old water tower located in the town's south end, collapsed in a heap following a day-long demolition exercise by Priestly Demolition recently. A photo story of the tower's final day on the Aurora horizon may be found on Page 8.

A look at Aurora's first half of 2002

The year 2002 will go down in Aurora history as a year of growth and change, of increased taxes, crowded roadways, stop signs, fear of the Ontario Municipal Board and turbulence and conflict on council.

In January council was scrambling to reduce the 2002 tax bill. The first draft indicated a 19.8 per cent increase, which was reduced to 12 per cent with hopes of making the final draft still lower.

Later in the month it was reduced to an increase of 8.8 per cent or about $69 on the average home, plus an estimated $35 increase for the region.

It was found that stop signs went up on Kennedy Street during reconstruction without an enacting bylaw, and residents objected to their removal.

The licencing for public garages was put on hold, as was the proposed development for a five-storey building at Tyler and Yonge Streets.

Aurora lost one of its most respected citizens, retired Deputy Fire Chief Fred Bolsby who died at the age of 64.

Friends of the late former Councillor Bob Hartwell started planning the Bob Hartwell Memorial Runners Challenge to raise funds for the Children's Safety Village.

One of the major issues facing council in February was the future of local hydro with the provincial proposal to deregulate both Ontario Hydro and local utilities.

The final report was received on construction of the new library at a total cost of $11 million including $2 million for land.

The multi-stop at Kennedy and George Streets was still controversial and stop signs left up for a six-month trial. Growth in Aurora was still strong with 1,300 approved residential units in the works.

Council supported a centralized fire dispatch system in principle pending a report on final costs, and approved Aurora being designated as a Character Community on a split vote.

The 2002 capital and operating budgets were adopted with a tax increase of 8.8 per cent over 2001. Council petitioned the province to reduce the powers of the Ontario Municipal Board and the region to relax the smoking bylaw for bingo parlours, as charities were suffering financially.

March brought many problems and challenges to council with Seaton Drive residents objecting to the elevation of the new homes to the rear of their properties. Aurora continued to grow from 35,837 to 40,167 or 15.2 per cent in five years.

Proposed widening of Bathurst Street through Aurora created concern about traffic noise and noise attenuation measures were requested. The need for a sidewalk on Bathurst Street was questioned.

Lighting for the Thompson Funeral Home parking lot concerned neighbours and town renewed parking agreements with the United Church.

Council supported an initiative for changes in legislation so local bylaw enforcement officers can enforce speeding and stop sign bylaws.

A heavy snowstorm hit the area March 26th with more than five inches of snow.

Council's application to federal and provincial governments for funding to rehabilitate the historic Church Street School was successful and $320,000 was committed.

April was another month of growth and complaints. There were 69 planning applications in various stages of progress for a total of 5,000 residential units. A 112-acre development on Bayview Avenue was approved and added to the list.

Clublink's proposal for a seven-storey retirement home on the former Aurora Highlands clubhouse site was appealed to the Ontario Municipal Board.

One more time

Maybe something will happen this time.

For many years a butcher shop occupied the property located on the southwest corner of Tyler and Yonge Streets. It later became a leather goods store and was damaged by fire, resulting in its demolition.

The property remained empty over the years in spite of various proposals.

Now it appears a five-storey mixed-use building including retail space on the ground floor and 32 residential condominium apartment units above will be constructed on the site.

But it's not the first time Aurora councillors have heard such a proposal.

At a recent council meeting a staff report was adopted recommending a zoning bylaw amendment with first, second and third readings of the enabling bylaw to be considered at the next available council meeting.

In March, 1996, council approved in principle an application for the redevelopment of the site for a four storey mixed-use building including commercial space on the ground floor and 13 condominium units above, plus the retention of a house at 5 Tyler Street.

Council approval the application subject to several conditions including façade treatment, alterations to the configuration of the fourth storey and issues dealing with access.

While a site plan agreement along with the third reading of the implementing bylaw was scheduled for the August 1996 council meeting, the documents were not approved pending the involvement of an urban design consultant.

The applicant retained a new architect for a revised project in 1999, which was for a five storey mixed use building, located on both the Yonge and Tyler Street properties.

Comedy opens Jan. 24

Theatre Aurora's latest comedy, "Run For Your Wife", written by Ray Cooney, opens at Factory Theatre January 24 and continues for a 10-performance run.

A man with two wives in adjacent towns is involved in an accident. He gives conflicting information to the police and medical personnel who contact his wives.

Both women anxiously await his safe return home. Things become hysterically funny when authorities turn up at his two apartments asking questions and trying to clear up apparent discrepancies in the information he has provided.

A neighbour tries to put things right, which adds to the mayhem.

The production is directed by Jeff Burke and produced by Betty Kelly.

Performance time is 8:15 p.m. For tickets and information call 905-727-3669.

Factory Theatre is located on Henderson Drive, between Yonge and Bathurst Streets.

Yonge project

The revised project included retail uses on the ground floor and 32 residential condominium apartments above and required several concessions including setbacks and buffer strips.

Following another public meeting in January, 2000, council approved the revised application in principle and requested that planning staff and the applicant work together to solve outstanding issues and concerns raised by neighbours.

By September, 2000, the urban design consultant, staff, the applicant and residents had reached consensus on several issues, except for parking.

A revised site plan submission was completed January 7, 2002, and was discussed by general committee later that month.

Angela Daust, representing the residents of Tyler and Temperance Streets, appeared before the committee to express opposition to the proposal. She pointed out that the mass and density of the building was not in keeping with the neighbourhood, nor the historic United Church across the road.

She also expressed concerns about traffic safety at the Tyler/Yonge intersection, on-street parking and pedestrian safety.

After listening to comments from the public, council agreed to refer the application back to staff until all outstanding issues were resolved, including parking.

Last month, staff advised the three properties had been consolidated into one parcel and the owner has granted an easement to the property owner to the west to allow for a driveway encroachment. In addition, the required number of parking spaces had been provided.

During the Open Forum of the meeting, Angela Daust expressed concern about increased traffic on Tyler and Temperance Streets due to a recommendation of the Traffic Safety Board that imposed a no-left turn at Yonge Street.

Council members expressed concern about the two access points on Tyler Street but agreed to adopt the staff recommendation of approval, subject to a traffic review following occupancy.

Former educator dies in hospital

Retired Assistant Director of Education in York Region, Terry Gray died in hospital New Year's Day, following a courageous battle with cancer.

Although he lived in Toronto, Terry had been playing pick-up hockey with friends in Aurora since 1994.

He served with the York Region District School board for many years, and taught in several Ontario locations during his lengthy career.

As assistant to Education Director Bob Cressman, Terry's office was located at the board headquarters in Aurora.

Services were held Monday in Toronto and were attended by a number of his fellow hockey players from Aurora.

He is survived by his wife, Janet, and children Kelly Gray-Levitt, Tom and Chris. There are four grandchildren.

Poor Richard

Could be year of frustrations

*The days come and go,
As calendar pages fall;
Where did the time go,
Events we can't recall.*

- Poor Richard's Scrapbook

Year 2002 has drawn to an end and one wonders where the time has gone and what was done.

It was a strange year with many ups and down and it will go down in history as a year of uncertainty.

Many seniors who have their life savings tied up in a Retirement Investment Fund (RIF), which may be invested in the stock market, watched their investments go down the drain, and they pray for some recovery in 2003.

Welfare recipients experienced a cost of living increase, while their social assistance payments remained at a reduced level. They are hoping for a more compassionate government.

Students, parents and teachers are hoping for some stability in the education system so they can settle down and enjoy their school years without having continual changes imposed on them by a chaotic government.

Patients want assurance that when they need urgent health care there is bed for them in their community hospital, without being shipped hither and yon looking for an empty bed and staff to look after them in a time of need.

Seniors want to remain independent in their home, but with government imposed cutbacks on health care and social services, some are forced to enter an institution at a much higher cost.

Environmentalists, homeless, unemployed, parents seeking child day care, poor downtrodden taxpayers, and so many others experienced 2002 as a year of uncertainty.

Now we move from a year of uncertainty to 2003, a year likely to go down in history as the year of frustration. It's not a pleasant outlook.

At the federal government Prime Minister Jean Chretien is saying the longest goodbye in history, as his announced retirement date is February 2004, in spite of the fact his replacement will be selected in November, 2003.

Chretien is so vindictive in his desire to keep Paul Martin from replacing him as Leader of the Liberal Party and Prime Minister that he will go to any length to prevent it, even if it means destruction of the party and the country.

Hopefully when the new Liberal leader is selected, there will be a general election, but where is the opposition? The Tories and the Alliance will still be fighting as to who represents the right, and both the NDP and Tories are looking for a new leader.

In Ontario, we may or may not have an election in 2003. Normally in the last year of a four-year term, the government would bring down an election budget in March or April and then call the election in May or June.

But these are not normal times. Premier Ernie Eves is in the difficult position of deciding whether to call an election during the summer of 2003, or take the unusual step of going to the fifth and final year of the government's mandate, in hopes the popular opinion polls will improve.

According to the polls if an election were to be called today, the Liberals under Dalton McGuinty would form the next government. They are focussing on the GTA area, now mainly Tory Blue in hopes of turning it into Liberal Red, a smart political move.

The Liberals have plenty of ammunition with urban sprawl, traffic gridlock, waste disposal, protection of the environment and other issues important to the people.

Then on the local level there will be a municipal election in November 2003 to determine who will lead the town's administration during the next three years.

If the election is anything like previous municipal elections, only about one of three eligible voters will make the effort and take the time to vote.

It's not a very good record, as elected representatives only represent about one-third of the population. If electors don't bother to vote, they shouldn't bother to complain.

Welcome to 2003, the Year of Frustration.

Letters to the editor

More highlights of bygone Aurora

To the editor,

This response may seem a little tardy but I always look forward to visiting my parents and having them pass on to me past copies of the Auroran.

In reference to Ken Elmer's very informative letter of Nov. 19, I thought of a few omissions in the same time period.

As a young boy living on the 4th Concession (Keele St.) of King, I remember well coming into my Dad's business at the Aurora Dairy Bar.

With my little allowance or birthday money I was anxious to visit Bowser's or Wilson's Hardware (north of the post office) to buy another Dinky toy.

As a toy collector now, boy, I sure wish I had hung onto those valuable keepsakes.

A visit to town might also be a visit to Jack Tunney's barber shop, next to Wilson's or a game of bowling over Cousin's Dairy with non-automated pin setters.

Walking down the street might mean a visit to the Del-Har Grill (spelling?) for candy and watch the Grey Coach bus arrive with an aunt.

Seems to me a chance to go the theatre next door on Centre St. for a Saturday matinee cost a quarter or 50 cents tops.

Elmer Yake sold us our first Admiral combination television, radio and record player just in time to see the Queen's coronation.

Across the street from the Aurora Dairy was Aurora Automotive between Doane Hall and Gilbert's GM dealership.

I heard a story about Gilbert's no longer patronizing my Dad's business after he bought a new Dodge station wagon from McQuarrie's in Oak Ridges.

In our many collectibles my wife and I have acquired, I have a complete set of Aurora and Cousin's Dairy embossed glass milk bottles along with many dated soda fountain artifacts.

Clearly on display, they are a constant memory of those carefree youthful days spent in Aurora.

Please continue your excellent work of researching and relating to us of how it was to live in Aurora.

Great opportunity awaiting students in federal program

To the editor:

Recently I was lucky enough to participate in Encounters with Canada, a program run in Ottawa where students from all over Canada meet.

This happens every week and each week has a different theme; history and remembrance, science and technology, journalism and communication, as well as many more.

I chose to go to the history and remembrance week, which took place during the week of Remembrance Day.

Since there were Remembrance Day ceremonies taking place, that's the first function we attended.

During the rest of the week, we went to Canada's War Museum, the War Aviation Museum, the Art Gallery of Canada, and had choices of four different theatrical plays to watch one night.

There were also veterans who came to speak to us and there were visits from authors, museum staff, and peacekeepers.

As well as all that, everyone was given many opportunities to meet people from all over the country and to learn about the two world wars in ways that we wouldn't at school.

I am writing to The Auroran for two main reasons: to thank Van-Rob Stampings of Aurora publicly for sponsoring me, and to promote awareness of Encounters with Canada.

Encounters with Canada looks for 37 students from Ontario weekly. When I went, there were only 20 Ontario students, so if you are looking for a change of environment and a chance to meet new friends, you should contact Encounters with Canada.

If you want to learn more about it, you should talk to the teachers at your school or guidance counselor.

Aurora

No taxi til 1946

To the editor,

Just a point of interest on the picture of the pickup town hockey league team (Auroran, Dec. 10) and the years 1943-44.

In the background is a sign reading Elmer's Taxi and my father was in the army up until June 8, 1945, at which time he was discharged.

The earliest this picture could have been taken would be about 1946 at which time Elmer's Taxi was started on Yonge Street.

Sorry, I can't help with the players' names.

Aurora in the year 2002 from Scott's perspective

EDITOR'S NOTE: Auroran cartoonist Scott Johnston has shown us in the last couple of years that his talent stretches beyond his cartoons. (He wrote the Night Before Christmas article on Page 4 in our last edition of 2002.) Now, tongue firmly embedded in cheek, Scott has a look at Aurora's past year...from his perspective.

Jan. 8 Anticipating a tax increase of nine per cent, Aurora Council softens up taxpayers by hinting the increase will be 25 per cent.
Jan. 15 After spending $9 million on the new library, Council decides to save money by keeping it closed Mondays. In other words, to save 1.1 per cent of the total cost, the facility will remain closed 14.3 per cent of the week.
Feb. 2 The groundhog accurately predicts the six-week summer water ban.
Feb. 9 Unseasonably warm weather threatens to turn the first Aurora Arctic Adventure into the Aurora Amazon Adventure.
Feb. 16 After two months of debate over the use of stop signs at the intersection of George and Kennedy, Council votes to address the problem by installing a cloverleaf interchange.
Feb. 20 The Public School Boundary debate gets out of hand when Siamese twins are assigned to different schools.
Mar. 20 Council decides not to install a sidewalk on Bathurst, while on Wellington, work begins on the new road widening, sidewalks, bicycle paths, lighting, median, landscaping, and pedestrian crossings.
May 5 Clowns Canada holds its annual convention in Aurora, prompting smiles from the children, and endless Council-related jokes from the adults.
May 25 The Leisure Complex re-opening after extensive renovations proves so successful that the pool is closed again in October, so that it can be re-opened again next spring.
June 2 Regional Council's decision not to approve a 50 per cent public transit subsidy for seniors faces little opposition, as few seniors can afford to attend the meeting to voice their concerns.
June 20 Applauding the preservation of 65 acres at the Ivy Jay Farm Woodland & Wetlands near Bayview are residents, who can enjoy the pleasant surroundings, and developers, who can charge higher prices for their adjacent "backing onto parkland" properties.

July 1 Two annual traditions take place in Aurora: the Canada Day parade, and the commencement of the summer water ban.
July 15 Speed humps are installed to calm traffic on Kennedy Road. Meanwhile, residents of Collins Crescent, Ridge Road and other streets observe that the pot-holes and other deteriorating conditions of their roads make them self-calming.
Aug. 3 The condo at Wellington and Industrial reaches two milestones: its first tenant, and recognition by the Aurora Historical Society.
Aug. 17 When the Federal government proposes splitting the town of Aurora into two ridings, residents are united ... in their apathy.
Sept. 9 Lake Ontario water is finally connected to the Aurora water system, which will reduce future summer water bans by at least one day.
Sept. 21 The term "throwing your money away" takes on new meaning as Council ponders a proposal for a fee of $1 to be paid for each additional bag of garbage.
Sept. 26 The bad news; the Leisure Complex Pool is shut down when extensive leaks are discovered. The good news; the ongoing leaking has recharged the aquifer under the town.
Sept. 29 Council's decision not to allow a Murray Drive location to be used for a house by Habitat for Humanity prompts the removal of "A Character Community" from Aurora town letterhead.
Oct. 3 Upon the removal of two trees on Yonge Street, residents are surprised to discover that the town has an LCBO.
Oct. 15 The Council vote on the town renaming policy is split between politicians who have streets named after them, and those who don't.
Oct. 23 No relief in sight for residents as Council decides not to approve washroom facilities in a local park.
Nov. 12 The Town runs out of excuses not to turn on the new Wellington street lights when the province fixes hydro prices at a lower rate.
Nov. 14 The ethics debate begins when it's revealed that a councillor's plumber has a cousin who once lived next to someone on the assembly line of the company that recently won the contract to supply paperclips to the town.
Dec. 2 Aurora looks for a new corporate logo, to replace the one that shows the town with its own fire department, police, garbage collection, transit...

Dec. 17 Council agonizes over approval of the construction of four houses on Kennedy St West. Meanwhile, construction continues on the 8,457 houses being built on Bayview.
Dec. 30 Anticipating a tax increase of nine per cent, Aurora Council softens up taxpayers by hinting the increase will be 25 per cent....

Letter to the editor

No problem identifying the guy on the right, but the dilemma is the kid on the left. Maurice Richard played the fatherly role of tying the boy's skates during a visit to Aurora's old arena in the sixties. Anyone know who the boy is?

Who's Rocket's friend?

To the editor,

I was going through some of Stuart's (Stu Symington) old photos and found a picture of Maurice Richard "The Rocket", when he was in Aurora at the old arena before it burned down in the sixties. When Stuart was in high school, the team sometimes played at the old Forum on St. Catharines Street in Montreal and some of the old hockey players used to practice with them. In Aurora, he and The Rocket had a nice visit and Stuart asked if he could take a couple of pictures of him. They turned out great. Do you remember Harry Sarafin, who had the Shell service station on Yonge Street at Ransom, just across from Wilma's Delicatessen and Sy's Snack Service, now "Jersey's"? The young lad in the photograph played for Harry's team, and maybe he would like a picture of The Rocket tying his skates for a keepsake. Only problem is, I don't know who the boy is. And I don't know why his head is bandaged, but it looks like he took an awful whack from somebody or something. Can anyone help?

Mayor's Report By Tim Jones

For the past few years, I have had the pleasure of awarding students of 55 ALIVE their class participation certificates along with a Town of Aurora pin. 55 ALIVE offers sessions in safe driving, aimed primarily at those who are either concerned about their driving habits and wish to take a refresher of the rules of the road and things to watch out for as we get older, or for those who are nearing 80 years of age and will soon be required to take a driver's test to keep their license. With aging, changes occur in hearing, vision, flexibility and reaction time. We must learn to adjust our skills to compensate for these changes. The session is a straightforward one, full of information including using a workbook, discussion and watching a video about driving habits and the areas we should all watch out for. It's not unlike some of the things we experience with our health - we tend to live in denial that we are ever in any serious threat of our health or that our driving habits are anything less than perfect. However, in many cases that is simply not the case. Ever had chest pain and passed it off as anything but a heart attack? Just ask almost anyone who has had a heart attack, or found out at a health check up that they have had a heart attack and didn't know it.

55 ALIVE course urged for seniors

The same applies to driving habits. On a video shown in the session, a gentleman who has driven for 65 years disregards the fact that he can't physically turn around to look out the back or side. As long as he is driving with his wife, he feels safe, as she makes the effort to look around for him and tells him it's okay to drive forward. Unfortunately, if there is a hesitation in the communication, there could be an accident and it could be fatal. And, how fair is that to an innocent second party? When asked, why do you take the chance, the reply is quick, "if I don't drive, we can't get what we need to get - we like our groceries fresh and we need to get to the store to get them." But at what potential cost? It's a great four-week session offered Fridays in February in a relaxed environment. The instructor is Barbara West. Once you turn 65 years of age, it is appropriate to attend, when you turn 80, it is mandatory. Registration can be arranged through Kim Hinder at the Aurora Seniors Centre, 905-727-8187. If you see something in this column that you wish to respond to, I welcome your comments, either through the paper, to the Town Hall by mail - Box 1000, Aurora, Ontario, L4G 6J1 or e-mail at: tjones@town.aurora.on.ca

Bouquets & Brickbats

By DICK ILLINGWORTH

 BOUQUETS to TOAST (Town of Aurora Staff Together) for their community efforts during the year. They raised a total of $1,431.80 through their Annual Craft and Bake Sale in November. The money was used to participate in the Children's Aid "Give a Kid a Christmas" program, with the committee playing Santa to two local families in need of assistance at Christmas.

 BOUQUETS to Aurora's AA Peewee Rep Hockey Team on winning their second tournament with a recent win at the 31st Annual Royal City Power Play Tournament in Guelph. Last October the team won the Georgetown Tournament.

 BOUQUETS to the Baskin Robbins ice cream stores for their innovative Freezer Frame Cake. Take a favourite photo of your child, grandchild or anybody, and it will be reproduced as the icing of the cake. It's edible and will come as a complete surprise to the subject.

 BOUQUETS to the Government of Canada for publishing the guide "Services for Seniors", which lists more than 120 services provided for seniors and their families from health, safety and taxes to information on retirement, travel and volunteering. For a free copy, call 1-800-622-6232.

 BRICKBATS to those at York Region who were responsible for designing the controversial Bayview Avenue extension from Bloomington Road to the Stouffville Sideroad as a convenient commuter route for Aurora motorists. But the new roadway is dangerous as four-lane sections suddenly turn into two-lanes and then back to three or four lanes.

 BOUQUETS to former Dr. G. W. Williams Secondary School graduate Darren Henry on becoming two-time world triathlon champion. His most recent win was in Cancun, Mexico, when he was successful over a field of 50 entrants from 10 countries.

 BOUQUETS to Robert Ryan on his excellent letter to the Auroran about Christmas. As the writer points out, he is tolerant and respectful of others, but in Canada we celebrate Christmas, and governments, businesses and other "politically correct" groups are trying to steal "Merry Christmas" for "Happy Holiday".

 BRICKBATS to the Eves Tory government for forcing local hydro utilities, including Aurora Hydro, to issue individual rebate cheques to compensate customers for paying high prices for hydro during the summer months, at considerable expense to the local utility.

 BOUQUETS to the Aurora Tigers, not only for their huge winning streak now at 31 games, but for the $350 the team raised for the Community Safety Village.

Like a good neighbour, State Farm is there.

Letters to the editor

Author Mills is far right; author Kincaid is the quarterback of this high school football team.

Now THAT was a football team

To the editor,

Well, the diminishing memory bank came alive in your December 10 edition with the picture on page 6 of the Toronto Argonauts, oops, sorry, Aurora High School 1953 Double Blue football team's offensive line.

Now to anyone under 40, photos like these may not seem important.

When you turn 60, however, your past histrionics become of paramount importance.

They define, in part, who you are, and to your children and grandchildren you might be inclined to embellish the details of your event.

Well, let's get started.

This was not just a football team, it was a GREAT football team.

I recall we won the Georgian Bay Championship in 1953.

This was a major event and if there was a Hall of Fame for High School teams, we would be there.

the great hands; King, Andrews, McClenny and Ethridge who provided a big, strong, and fast front line.

Griffith and Mills were known for their speed and quickness particularly when double teaming opposition tackles and linebackers.

Preston and Easterbrook were good track athletes and their speed was designed to move through those big holes.

Anchoring all this was the coolness of our quarterback

Kincaid and the dedicated and supportive coaching of Frank Gregoire.

This is not just a picture.

It shows a team and high school that had, in 1953, a great deal of spirit and passion.

We did have fun and my last recollection was that we all received negotiable offers from the Toronto Argonauts. Maybe they can still use us.

Steve Mills
Aurora

But Keith says team got beat

To the editor,

Here are my recollections about the picture (Auroran, Dec. 10).

It was taken in the fall of 1953 which was the second year in Grade 13 for several of us including Cy Easterbrook, Sam King and me.

We were taking additional subjects and improving our marks in others.

As well, we had agreed the previous year when we had a very good team, that if we hung together for another season we had an excellent chance of moving well along in the Ontario playoffs.

As it turned out we got clobbered by Alliston High School in the first game outside of our own league.

Moose Andrews and Norm Ethridge were really big guys and subsequently had a tryout with Toronto Balmy Beach of the ORFU (Ontario Rugby Football League) which was sort of a farm system for the CFL in those days.

Easterbrook got an engineering degree at U of T and started a long career with DuPont in Eastern Ontario. Far as I know he still lives near Brockville.

Ethridge joined the navy and became a pilot. How he ever fit into a cockpit I don't know.

Ran into him once in the early 60s when I was living in Halifax, but have no idea where he is now.

Keith Kincaid

Cumulative effect?

To the editor,

Health Canada wants to expand its irradiation of foods to include meats.

I wasn't aware certain spices, flour, potatoes and such are currently blasted with "safe" radiation.

This is done to kill micro-organisms like e-coli. (A side benefit to the food industry is delayed spoilage.

A negative is some vitamins are lost, but as the article points out, some are lost anyway when you freeze or cook your food.

I don't even really understand micro-waving, but I can't help wondering, if Orville's kernels have been irradiated, then later micro-waved, smothered with diet margarine, and washed down with light beer, what could be the cumulative effect?

SMALL CLASSES. BIG RESULTS.

1. READY FOR THE TORCH - Aurora's 40-year-old water tower is shown moments before demolition equipment attacked it.

2. FIRST NIBBLES - 90-foot "can opener" takes the first bites out of the tower, in a project that would last all day.

3. CRIPPLED - With two legs severed and a third weakened, the tower has lost much of its invincibility. But it remained upright.

Life and death of a water tower

According to Ryan Priestly, it would fall into itself.

The president of Priestly Demolition, Ryan said the engineers expected that once the middle and a few legs of Aurora's 40-year-old water tower were removed, the structure would collapse in a heap.

Not. After a full day of weakening the equivalent of a 10-storey building, the town's south end water tower didn't collapse.

It toppled. The giant tower, capable of holding a million gallons of water, came crashing down, wiping out a mature coniferous tree and a hydro pole.

It unceremoniously face-planted itself in the mud.

For Priestly Demolition, the experts in getting rid of things in a hurry, the water tower was a new challenge.

Equipped with a huge inventory of destructive demolition devices, Priestly's men worked all day at removing the now useless tower, while spectators, including Mayor Tim Jones and Councillor George Timpson, watched from a distance.

The idea was to remove the centre post, demolish a small building, then eat off a few of the tower's eight legs.

Three legs had been severed and the structure remained upright. The fourth was the killer.

But instead of collapsing under its own weight, the tower let out a horrible groan, then fell toward the property's only access, a driveway off Davis Road.

Founder of the company, Vic Priestly was on hand to watch his son, Ryan, bring the structure to the ground.

"Any demolition is a good demolition," Vic said, when asked if things had gone according to plan.

By the end of the following day, the mortally wounded structure was being carved up into a plethora of scrap metal and awaiting removal.

Auroran photos by Ron Wallace

4. A LITTLE BITE HERE - With dad, Vic, and son, Ryan, watching, Priestly equipment chews into a tower leg.

5. DOWN SHE COMES - Hard to tell, but the tower is falling, and the photographer is scrambling. Tree and hydro pole were victims.

6. WELL DONE, SON - Vic Priestly, right, congratulates son, Ryan, after the tower in the background came crashing to the ground.

RUMOURS & RUMBLINGS

His name is not in the news these days, but back in February, 1983, Ken Taylor was well known as the Canadian Ambassador to Iran who was able to use his office to hide several Americans and sneak them back safely to the United States.

He was a hero to the Americans.

Taylor visited Aurora that month as the guest speaker at a "Multi-Cultural Conference" at the Aurora Highlands Golf Club.

The conference was designed to promote awareness of ethno-cultural similarities and differences within York Region.

The Cross-Cultural Program of Southern York Region sponsored the event.

Following the conference, Mayor Dick Illingworth was asked why he hadn't attended to welcome the heroic Canadian.

His answer was simple: "I wasn't invited".

WHEN COFFEE WAS STILL 25 CENTS

For many years the coffee shop at the former IGA store at Yonge and Wellington, now Sobey's, was the favourite meeting spot for Aurora's seniors to gather every morning.

At that time coffee was 25 cents a cup. When the sales tax was imposed in 1982, IGA manager Art Pepper decided to drop the price of a cup of coffee to 23 cents so he could still sell it for 25 cents with the store absorbing the tax.

Local seniors appreciated the price adjustment so they could go in and enjoy their coffee and a chat at the same price.

In May, 1985, when the store underwent renovations, it was planned to eliminate the snack bar and the seniors' favourite meeting place.

Val Waite organized a 100-name petition and the snack bar and coffee tables were saved.

I wasn't invited, the mayor said

PARKING RESTRICTIONS REDUCED

If you have problems trying to fit your car in one of the designated spaces in a parking lot, and more problems when you try to back out due to lack of room, don't blame the plaza or store operator.

In May, 1985, Aurora Council decided to reduce the minimum size of the parking stalls from 19.7 feet deep to 17.4 feet and the width from 9.8 feet to 8.8 feet.

The reason given was that cars were generally smaller at that time than in 1980 when the original sizes were set.

The new sizes were tested at the Shoppers Drug Mart on Yonge Street for more than a year without any reported complaints or problems.

DETERIORATION OF DOWNTOWN

It was in 1960 when the Post Office carried out a "places to call" survey in Aurora as the first step to door-to-door mail delivery.

Until that time residents walked downtown to the Old Post Office with the historic clock tower on Yonge Street.

What would normally be about a 10-minute trip often stretched out to more than an hour as neighbour met neighbour and people stopped to shop in the many retail stores in the downtown core.

For the ladies there was Ardill's Department Store and for men Norm Cook's Men's Wear and Chet Osborne's Shoes and Clothing.

There were three drug stores, Nixon Fisher's Five to a Dollar, Mary's Fruit Store, Rubin's Grocery and Department Store and many others.

In those days, 400 to 500 people would gather on Yonge Street every Saturday afternoon about 3 p.m. as Harry Seston mounted the steps of the Post Office to make the weekly draw of an Auroran who had shopped in the downtown area during the past week.

When home mail delivery started there wasn't the same need to make frequent visits to the Post Office and the downtown core and that was the start of the core's deterioration as a retail centre.

Then in 1967 a $397,670 contract was awarded for the construction of the present Post Office on Wellington Street East.

Reviewing Aurora's events

Speed complaints continued to haunt council as more and more streets requested the limit be reduced to 40 km/hr.

Wenderly Drive and Iber Court were slated for reconstruction and the reconstruction of Jasper Drive threatened to become an election issue.

As the Aurora Tigers hockey team advanced to the playoffs, a conflict developed as the Aurora Chamber of Commerce had booked the community centre for their Annual Home Show and staff was directed to come with a permanent solution as to how both users could use the building at the same time.

Gerry Conetta obtained a limo licence in spite of a staff recommendation to the contrary.

In May, Aurora was named Welcome Wagon Community of the Year for its population class.

Renovations to the Church Street School got underway and the 2002 tax rate was set with an increase of $94.02 on the average home.

Aurora citizens learned they would start receiving Lake Ontario water blended with the local water supply in late May or early June and that the Wellington Street reconstruction project was on schedule and on budget.

Motorists were pleased to learn that the regional centralized traffic control system was to be upgraded. Council petitioned the province to amend the Highway Traffic Act to permit a 40-km/hr speed limit on all streets in the municipality.

Due to a number of citizen complaints about the number of newspaper boxes on town streets, council directed staff to review ways and means under which the boxes might be controlled.

Former Aurora Councillor Earl Stewart died in a Barrie hospital during the early part of May.

Aurora council was hopeful some of its traffic problems would be solved with the release of the consultant's report on the Master Transportation Operations Study in June, but councilors were disappointed.

Following a trial period of speed humps on Kennedy Street, council agreed the traffic-calming device was here to stay.

The fundraising committee for the new Library reached $750,000 with a target of $1 million.

On June 11th, students, staff and others carried the World Youth Day Cross north on Yonge Street from Cardinal Carter High School to Our Lady of Grace Church.

During the month there was considerable debate over the future uses of the 89-acre parcel of land the town purchased on Leslie Street, and the need for a Clean Yards Bylaw. The proposed removal of the Yonge Street pedestrian crossover at Mosley Street was also debated.

The first six months of 2002 were interesting and controversial, but there is much more to come in the last six months of the year, which will appear in the Auroran next week.

Shutting down Tigers like stopping a train

Thirty-one games and counting...

The Aurora Tigers Junior A hockey club have played only four games since a week before Christmas, but no matter...

They were all wins.

On Saturday night, they stretched their unbeaten streak to 31 games, and took over first place overall, atop the 35-team Ontario Junior A league.

The Tigers continued winning Saturday in Thornhill defeating the Rattlers 3-2.

An outstanding performance by Thornhill goaltender Mike Andreoff almost prevented the Tigers from extending their streak. but as has become customary with this team, they keep finding ways to win.

After coming off a close 1-0 win against Collingwood the night before, the Tigers were looking to get a better jump early in the game.

And that they did, outshooting the Rattlers 22-4 during the first 20 minutes of play.

Scott MacDonald opened the scoring for Aurora on a power play goal but Thornhill tied the game near the half way mark of the period, beating Tiger goaltender Lance King.

Although Aurora maintained its pressure on Thornhill, outshooting them 16-6, it was the Rattlers who took the lead on a power play goal.

But, a beautiful short handed goal by Matt Bahen, set up by Jordan Brenner and Mark Poole, allowed the Tigers to head into the dressing room tied at two after 40 minutes of play.

The third period was more evenly played with Aurora narrowly outshooting Thornhill 9-7.

An incredible wrist shot by Steve Mignardi with just under five minutes to play in the game gave Aurora the 3-2 lead, one they would hold onto for the win.

A night earlier, playing their first game since December 20th, the Tigers travelled to Collingwood to face the Blues.

With Collingwood coming off a big win over Stouffville Thursday, the Tigers knew they were in for a battle.

Both teams showed signs of playing cautious in the first period.

Chris Whitley turned in another outstanding performance for Aurora, making some key saves.

The Tigers seemed to step it up a bit in the second, outshooting the Blues 13-9.

The third period belonged to Aurora as they seemed to be all over Collingwood.

Tigers outshot the Blues 14-7 and finally managed to get a puck past the Collingwood netminder.

Jesse Olden's shot with just under seven minutes to play in the game gave Aurora a 1-0 lead and from that point on the great play of Whitley allowed Aurora to continue its incredible winning streak...and more importantly give Whitley his fifth shutout of the season.

Prior to Christmas, Aurora met its arch-rival Newmarket Hurricanes in a back-to-back series, and managed to add four points to their ever-growing record.

In the first game, Tigers travelled to Newmarket to meet the Hurricanes and took a 3-1 victory.

Things weren't quite that close the following night, as Aurora thumped Newmarket 7-0 at home.

Aurora got goals from Derek Doucette (2), Steve Mignardi, Jamie Minchella, Sam Skwarchuk, Matt Christie and Steve Downie.

Superb goaltending by Chris Whitley kept Newmarket at bay as he earned his fourth shutout of the season.

Aurora will travel to Stouffville Thursday, return home Friday night to host Ajax then host Markham Sunday afternoon.

them to the York Catholic School Board Regional Finals recently undefeated in their local and north area tournaments.

Each player was instrumental in attaining this goal because each was assigned specific positions that matched his strengths (setter, spiker or digger).

The Regionals were held at the new St. Theresa Liseux Catholic High School in Richmond Hill.

Teams representing the south, east and west regions included Christ the King, Mother Theresa and Our Lady Of Fatima.

OLG was not playing its best as the first round got underway.

They split games with Mother Theresa (25-19, 18-25) and Christ the King (25-22, 16-25) then lost both games to Our Lady of Fatima (14-25, 16-25).

A misinterpreted rule didn't help things, however, the team dug deep in the semi-finals against Christ the King and won 27-25 and 25-

19, much to the surprise of the other teams and spectators.

The finals pitted OLG against Mother Theresa. Their first game was a nail biter with close competition and spiking from both teams.

Eventually OLG took the game 27-25. The second game was also close however with consistent serves, digs and spikes, OLG became Regional Champions in two straight with the second game score 25-19.

This is the first regional championship title for an Our Lady of Grace school team ever to be won.

The team is made up of Grade 7 and 8 boys including Philip Benda, Tyler Cappell, Ryan Fennell, Darren Gwilliam, Steven Keane, Fraser Kegel, Jake MacDougall, Kevin Shetler, Alex Stewart, Joel Stock, Jamie Tuck and Matthew Venditelli.

Marcel Leone is the Coach.
