Town looking for achievers

The annual Town of Aurora have one mailed. Civic Appreciation Awards recognize exceptional contributions made by citizens for the community.

While the Town of Aurora organizes the event, its success rests with the public's participation in nominating award recipients.

Groups, organizations, service clubs and individuals who make a difference need someone like you to highlight their contributions.

To find out more, pick up a nomination package at the Aurora Town Hall, Aurora Family Leisure Complex or call 905-726-4762 to

The awards ceremony will be held at the Aurora Town Hall Council Chambers Wednesday June 7, at 7.30 p.m., but nominations must be submitted by Tuesday, April 11.

Honours available include the Bob Harman Memorial Award, Johnson's Cultural Achievement Award, The Civic Appreciation Awards, Outstanding Achievement Service Awards, Volunteer Awards, Youth Volunteer Service Awards, Community Organization Award and The Citizen of The Year

Aurora and area students await the starting announcement to begin the 11th annual Aurora Optimists Student Chess Tournament held last week at the Aurora Legion for youngsters, Grade 1 to 12. Winners advance to the Regional finals slated for March 25th.

Proposed retirement home hits a brick wall

A proposal to build a retirement home in the John West Way - Hollandview Trail area, ran into stiff neighbourhood opposition Wednesday night.

The 1.7 acre parcel of land on the northwest corner, behind the Town Hall, is designated high density residential with a maximum height of seven storevs.

However, Origin Retirement Communities submitted an application to permit an institutional use to allow for a fivestorey retirement home with 144 full service rental units.

As the proposal does not meet zoning requirements, an amendment was required to rezone the land from high density residential to institutional.

Wednesday, at the public planning meeting, a staff report said the proposal was compatible with surrounding, existing and proposed land uses and was in keeping with the original community concept.

It was pointed out that a five-not significantly increase traffic in the area as the majority of res-storev retirement home would idents would rely on public transit.

Speaker's been in the clouds

You may be gasping for breath if you attend the upcoming men's breakfast this Saturday at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

The event, open to men, women and children, will feature Harold Mah as Last spring he went with a Canadian team to Mt. Everest and he got as high as Camp Two, some 25,000 feet above sea level.

Oxygen is at a premium that high up.

Camp two meant Mah got through the hair raising Khumbu Icefall where many climbers have lost their lives.

The event, at the Victoria Street church, begins at 8.30 a.m. A 15-minute film will precede his talk, followed by questions and answers.

Column name

So far, The Auroran has received more than 50 suggestions for the name of its new seniors' column, but we think there are more ideas out there.

So we'll extend the contest another few days to name the column, which this ek, appears on Page 13. Winning selection will receive a non-alcoholic dinner for two at Jonathan's

Restaurant, and the runner-up gets two tickets to the seniors' Friday night dance. Submit your ideas to The Auroran, 75 Mary Street, Unit 3, L4G 1G3, or drop them off at the new seniors' centre, 5 Municipal Drive, across from the town hall

Street name suggestion causes uproar

that his name be removed from a subdivision plan street, following a lengthy discussion over the subject last Tuesday night.

Constable, who Don served one term on Aurora Council in the 90s, found his name proposed on a Hallgrove Estates subdivision plan, and said he didn't know how it got there.

Following the meeting, Mr. Constable told The Auroran he was disappointed and humiliated with the discussion and pointed out he hadn't asked for his name to be on the list, was not aware that it was, and in view of the discussion would ask that it be removed.

The issue started out as a routine report to name two streets in the Hallgrove Estates subdivision in accordance with the town's street naming policy but turned into a heated debate at the general committee meeting.

In accordance with the

the option of requesting specific street names for proposed new developments. assuming it passes several

The proposed names of Major and Constable were selected by the developer after reviewing the approved bank of street names.

Names included in the bank are those of historical persons or families and others within the municipality who had made outstanding, significant and/or exemplary contributions to the town.

The name Major originated from an early landowner from the 1800s and the name Constable came from the former councillor who served from 1991 to 1994.

It was noted that both streets would likely extend south into the town-owned Leslie Street property.

Councillor Nigel Kean asked that the discussion take place in private as it was a touchy issue.

about naming streets after living former councillors when there were Citizens of the Year, veterans and early landowners who could be rec-

He suggested the developer's request be rejected and other names selected and was supported by Councillor Wendy Gaertner.

Councillor Evelyn Buck disagreed claiming the naming request had been submitted in accordance with the policy and she opposed the Kean motion.

She was supported by Councillor Bill Hogg who pointed out that a policy was in place and the policy was not on the agenda for discus-

Councillor Ron Wallace noted both streets could be major roadways and the councillor had only served one term whereas former Mayor Dick Illingworth, who served in that capacity on two separate occasions, had a

"dinky, little cul de sac" named after him.

Both Mayor Tim Jones and Councillor Damir Vrancic argued the policy was in place and it should be followed, with Vrancic adding that the policy needed review as the process was flawed.

When it was pointed out that Mr. Constable was in the audience, Councillor Kean said he hadn't wanted the discussion to become personal but his request for a private meeting had been denied.

When the vote was called to accept the names, it was lost on a 4-4 vote with Councillor Phyllis Morris absent.

With assurance from the Director of Planning that there was no urgency, on a 5-3 vote, a subsequent motion for a review of the naming policy was adopted.

It was in March, 1990, when council of the day directed staff to draft a naming policy for town streets to include names of historic people and those who had made outstanding contributions to the community.

Court system seems to favour the criminal

Our politicians have promised, The justice system to fix; If they break their promise, The penalty will be a deep six! - Poor Richard's Scrapbook

The jury verdict was in and it was "guilty".

The accused, a man in his 30s, had a lengthy record of violent crimes including car-jacking and assault.

His lawyer pleaded for a light sentence and a chance at parole, but he was out of luck, the judge handed him a sentence of 75 years to life.

That didn't happen in Canada where the justice system appears to favour the criminal rather than the victim, rather it happened in a California court.

Such severe sentences are unheard of in Canada even for our most serious crimes.

Public opinion polls over the years indicate that Canadians believe our courts are not handing out tough enough sentences and the public has more confidence in police officers than they do in judges.

It might be the stress judges are under haunted by the grim stories they hear and the responsibility they bear and the respect they don't get.

While judges are responsible for the sentences they dole out, it's not entirely fair that they take the full blame for the wider failings of the Canadian justice and penal systems.

Prison sentences no longer mean what judges say they mean as part of the fault rests with a long standing and absurd legal provision called statutory release, which requires most convicts only serve a fraction of the time they're given.

If a judge awards a 12-year prison term, the offender will be out in eight years, or if sentenced to six years will be free in four years and so on.

Unless a prisoner has been designated a specially dangerous offender, after one-sixth of the sentence, the criminal is eligible for day passes and after serving onethird of the sentence is eligible for parole.

An example of the failure of the justice and parole systems is the case of Robert Bruce Moyes.

He had a long record of violent crimes and parole violations and in August, 2002, was charged with seven counts of murder in 1995-96, during a time he was out on parole from a so-called life sentence.

The sentence began in 1987 but by 1993 he was getting day passes, after serving time at the Club Fed in Ferndale, British Columbia, the prison with a golf course.

This may be an isolated case but it doesn't help the perception of a justice system that's soft on crime, unaccountable and too quick to push the convicted back into society.

Not only that but time served in jail pending the trial is normally considered two-for-one.

Take the recent case of a nine-year-old Richmond Hill girl who was beaten and sexually assaulted by a 47-yearold truck driver.

In Newmarket court, even though Justice Peter Wright called it an unspeakable crime of violence and a plea for a 10-year term came from the Crown Attorney, the judge said he could find no precedent for a sentence longer an seven years and that was the sentence.

But when the two-for-one credit for time spent in jail prior to the trial was put into effect, the seven years was reduced to four.

Assuming good behaviour, the criminal will be out on parole before then, while the poor victim is still suffering from the trauma of the attack.

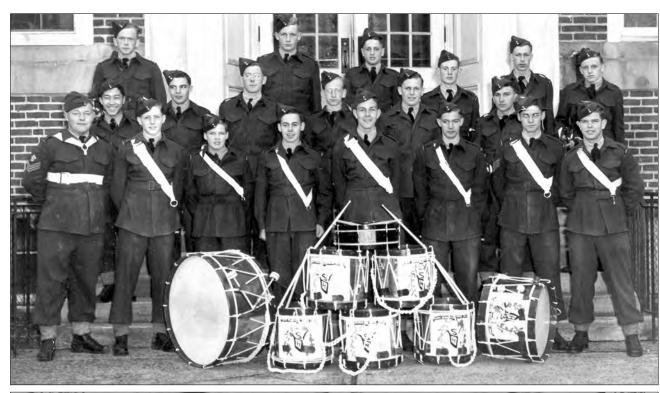

Several attempts have been made in both the Ontario Legislature and the federal House of Commons to introduce a Private Members' Victims' Bill of Rights but to no avail, as support for the proposed legislation wasn't there.

Joe Wamback of Newmarket has spent enormous amounts of time and effort getting names on a petition requesting the government for action in enacting a Victims' Bill of Rights after his son was badly beaten by a gang of youths.

His efforts, to date, have been to no avail.

Police may protest and public opinion polls may resound with discontent but until somebody in charge at Justice and Correctional Services takes notice, nothing will change.

If you do the crime, you must pay the time!

Aurora High School cadet band members are seen in the top photograph, a picture taken around 1947. In it are, front row, left to right, Pete Styrmo, Ralph Rank, Clifford Core, Ron Simmons, ?, Walt Davis, David Johnston and Bill McGhee. Middle row, left to right, John King, Bill Attridge, ?, Jim Foster, ?, ?. Back row, left to right, Walter Bunn, Gordon Lee, Bob Stevens, Bruce Lubbock, Donald Watson and Jim Cook. Below, officers and NCOs of the high school cadet corps pose in front of the stage of what is currently Wells Street Public School. That school started as Aurora's first high school in 1892 in a building that was replaced by the current structure in 1923. It has been a public school since 1952. Meanwhile, the Aurora fire truck that appeared in this spot two weeks ago, lives. It's currently being refurbished by members of the Toronto Fire Department, and perhaps it may appear in a future Aurora parade. The information came from Aurora's Peter Ross, one of the firefighters working on the vehicle's restoration.

For those of us who have studied the early times of union building days of John L. Lewis, and Walter Menken Ruether, driving a wedge generally comes back to hurt us all.

I think at this time when the federal Liberals have some delicate rebuilding chores, all provincial

Mayor's Report By Tim Jones

Road Watch is a Region of York community-based initiative that gives residents and visitors an opportunity to report dangerous and aggressive drivers to the York Regional Police.

The first Road Watch Program started in Caledon in 1995 and it has grown throughout the GTA.

The program focuses on the following components: public education and awareness; participation and enforcement, all towards modifying aggressive driving

In turn, it is hoped that as a result of this program, there will be fewer accidents and injuries caused by motorized vehicles.

When we speak of aggressive driving we mean speeding, following too close, failure to yield right of way, improper lane changes, improper passing, disobeying traffic signs and signals, etc.

Every month when members of Aurora Council approve the Traffic Safety Advisory reports we address areas in Aurora where speeding and traffic safety are issues being addressed.

Road Watch is a way, if implemented properly, where every citizen can help us to address these

It is hoped that if any resident observes an act of aggressive driving, they report it to the York Regional Police through a Road Watch Citizen report.

These can be obtained from the Town Hall as well as the Library, the Leisure Centre and the Ontario Provincial Police building on Yonge Street at

If you have access to a computer, you can print your own report form off the web site at http://www.yorkregionsavealife.ca/Save-A-Life.htm.

These reports can also be faxed to the police at 905-841-0665.

The following is the process applied for Road Watch reports:

The first time a Citizen Report is received about a particular vehicle, a letter is sent to the registered owner of the vehicle describing the incident and location where the vehicle was observed operating in an aggressive or unsafe manner.

The letter highlights the date the incident occurred and the reported violation.

A request is made to the registered owner or any driver of the vehicle to voluntarily co-operate and drive in a responsible manner.

The second time a Citizen Report is received about the same vehicle, a second letter is sent from the police to the registered owner of the vehicle.

A police officer then contacts the registered owner of the vehicle via telephone to advise them of the complaint and potential consequences.

The third time a Citizen Report is received about the same vehicle, a third letter is forwarded to the registered owner of the vehicle, and a police officer will visit the registered owner. Depending on the circumstances, charges will be considered and an officer may monitor the vehicle's actions to facilitate enforcement.

Any person who submits a Citizen Report will remain anonymous, unless he or she chooses to pursue a detailed police investigation that may result in charges being laid and require a court appearance.

To protect the rights of all, Citizen Reports must be signed by the author of the report and the information must be complete to safeguard the system against abuse.

If someone chooses to use this process to harrass someone, the police are trained to investigate all sides of the issue to avoid misuse of the system.

Road watch is a valuable way to get the extra help we need to make our streets safer for pedestrians and drivers alike.

I would like to thank Cliff Davies, Aurora's Road Watch representative on the Regional Road Watch committee for his role in representing our Town on the Regional Road Watch committee and for his help in supplying material for this column.

Further information on Road Watch can be found on the web at http://www.yorkregionsavealife.ca/Save-A-

Undisciplined dog owners helped create this problem

To the editor,

Re: Mr. Routledge's land.

It is sad that this area is now off limits to dog walkers, as well as people wanting to use the trail for just walking or riding. Mr. Routledge was certainly generous to allow use of his land in this way.

I have been walking there for close to 20 years. with different dogs, and have seen first hand the changes as more people found out about his property.

Not all were for the

It was great to see more dogs out for the socializing of both pets and owners, but it also led to more problems as not everyone was responsible with their pets.

Last summer I stopped going because of the out of control dogs running around. A lot of people seemed to think that "leash free" meant "let 'em run wild".

In any leash free environment a degree of control is still required by the owner.

I cannot remember how many times I almost ran over someone's dog that had been let out right on the road to run free.

I do not think the road is leash free areal

As I understand it the Oak Ridges Trail itself is not either, yet many people who wanted only to walk or ride the trail had to put up with dog feces left behind by inconsiderate owners, or dogs racing up and down the trail freely.

Not to mention the digusting sight of pooh bags left hanging in the trees by lazy owners not willing to take them back out with

Did they think the Pooh Fairy would be by to pick up after them?

I see the same thing happening now at the town's leash free park on Industrial

The other night there had to be about 15 bags left right under the sign asking people to take their dog droppings away with them.

If people cannot perform that simple task, maybe they should not own a dog?

I hope Sheppard's Bush does not get any worse than it is already; because a lot more people will be going out there now that the 16th Sideroad is cut off.

Anyone laying all the blame for this on the people living out there should really ask themselves if they respected the rights of the residents nearby.

Many a time I went out there and saw cars parked all over the road, sometimes in the driveway of the homeowner in question also.

I cannot say I blame the homeowner for acting as he did, it got pretty crazy out there some days.

I will miss the friends I made out there. Most of the long time regulars respected Mr. Routledge's property and it is sad to see them denied this area because things got out of hand.

I know a lot of peop who stopped going because of the problems I men-

I guess I am luckier than most though, my Jack Russell has a special backpack that she goes in while I ride my bike out there.

I can still lock it up and have a nice walk.

I know soon that this property may also be gone, and I hope the Town Of Aurora will consider a new, larger leash free area somewhere else in town to reflect the growing amount of dogs coming here with their owners.

Parking restrictions make King hiking trail useless

My husband and I have enjoyed the privilege of using Mr. Routledge's land for more than five years ever since our dog, Darcy, was a

We are also thankful to Mr. Routledge for allowing so many of us the use of his land with its spacious fields and wooded trails.

It was definitely worth the drive across town three or four times a week. Routledge is a friendly man, smiling and waving to individuals as he rode his giant lawn mower around the fields during the summer.

I for one am going to miss visiting that little piece of heaven.

Like many others, we find it frustrating that only a few could have such a powerful influence with the powers that be, namely King Township Council, to disalthe entrance of the Oak Ridges Moraine trail on the 16th Sideroad.

It wasn't enough to strong-arm Mr. Routledge to install those No Trespassing signs bordering his property.

I agree with the Beers family that good things must come to an end (unfortunately) but it is a real misfortune to the dog lovers of Aurora and the surrounding area to be banned from the trail with the parking restrictions imposed recently.

There is the option of using the trails at the York Region's forest east of Aurora.

I drove to the Warden Avenue entrance one summer with my mother and my

We ended up getting very lost on the trails and after wandering around for two hours we stumbled across two men engaged in a highly inappropriate act right in plain sight.

I haven't had the desire to go back since.

I never had to worry about an unfortunate occurrence such as this strolling on Mr. Routledge's land.

My husband feels the residents of King Township should petition to have 16th Sideroad opened up to traffic from Bathurst Street to Dufferin Street. For one thing it would alleviate heavy traffic flow from adjacent streets. With the exception of the families living in the monster homes along 16th Sideroad and along the Oak Ridges Trail, this nature trail is of no value to anyone anymore, with or without dogs, now that there are parking restrictions.

With respect to Mr. Allison receiving that parking ticket, perhaps he should check to make sure the proper by-law was put into place since King Township did not bother asking for public input on this issue. Apparently, with so many cars parked along 16th Sideroad at certain times of the week, it seems some parked cars were encroaching on a small portion of the property belonging to 1010 16th Sideroad.

The property owner disliked this even though the houses (including his) are located a fair distance from the road and not visible from the road.

I don't see why parked cars would have such an adverse effect on these property owners.

King Township sees the obvious need for a leashfree facility for area residents, therefore, why can't they provide an alternative?

Thank you, Mr. Routledge

To the editor,

I just wanted to voice the sentiments of a number of vour readers and many of our Aurora neighbours who are dog lovers.

We would like to thank Mr. Routledge from the bottom of our hearts for the generosity he showed in sharing his beautiful property with our families and our canine friends.

He permitted us to walk the trails and fields of his property, bringing countless joy to hundreds of "puppies", from Great Danes to Schnauzers and from pups whose only desire was to play and explore, to aging canines who just enjoyed basking in the sunshine, warming weary old bones.

It gave families the opportunity to step back in time and enjoy life with their kids and their canine friends in a way that we don't see very often in today's modern busy world of user fees and a "me first" mentality.

Our Labrador Retriever Shadow "grew up" on Mr. Routledge's property, "visiting" daily from the time he was just six months

He learned what was and wasn't allowed, not just from people but from his peers because of this unique "leash free" environment.

A visit never went by when one of the elder canine statesmen wouldn't stop by to put the rambunctious puppy in his

The hours spent chasing frisbees, balls and squirrels and rough housing with the other pups meant a healthy and tired dog by day's end, ensuring that there wasn't any evening mischief to be

It's a shame that the selfish desires of one individual can ruin such a special place for so many, but alas that is our brave new world of "me first".

I understand that it was dogs running off leash in the parking area that prompted the actions.

Had it happened anywhere else, the bylaw officer would have been called to ticket the negligent owners and that would have been the end

I just don't understand this type of backlash that affects hundreds of families and their canine family members, to address the concerns of a single property owner, who knew of the situation before purchasing their property.

Not all that different from buying a home under an airport flightpath and then lobbying for flight restrictions.

But no one would do that, would they?

Now that the "no parking" signs have gone up, where are we supposed to park to access the Oak Ridges Trail?

He's equally outraged by Emerson's switch

To the editor,

After Belinda's traitorous switch from being elected as a Conservative member of Parliament to a self-appointed Liberal less than two years ago I strongly voiced my opposition to her actions.

I therefore readily admit I was one of the Conservative voters referred to in a letter from "Holly" appearing in the February 14th edition of The Auroran, (although I do take umbrage at the rabid comment).

I and many other Conservative voters were quite justifiably angry that our votes were so flippantly and lightly disregarded for what appears to have been political opportunism.

As to David Emerson, I am equally outraged at his defection to the Conservative Party.

I know how betrayed and angry the Liberal supporters, workers and voters for Emerson must feel.

I am even more disgusted and angry with Stephen Harper for accepting him into the Conservative Party and rewarding his betrayal with a cabinet post.

I had thought and hoped that by electing a Conservative government Canadians had voted for a more accountable and ethical parliament, that there was now to be a higher standard

Given the hypocrisy of Harper's acceptance and appointment to cabinet of Emerson this is sadly not the case.

As far as being labeled by "Holly" as an "angry, hateful messaged person" I thought and still think that what Belinda did was wrong just as what Emerson has now done in copying her is also wrong and goes against the very principle of democracy.

As for this election, I was disappointed that Belinda was elected and by such a large margin.

I thought we, in the Aurora-Newmarket riding, had an ideal opportunity to send a message to all politicians across Canada that there are consequences and penalties to be paid for deceitful and unethical behaviour.

Having said that, however, Belinda has been elected under her true Liberal colours

I congratulate her and fully accept and respect the wishes of the majority of the people in our riding.

Hopefully one thing that will come of all this is legislation: perhaps the Stronach-Emerson Bill that would prevent any future elected representative from "crossing the floor" without the consent of their constituents.

Patron loved "Pirates" musical

To the editor,

A lie, an honest to goodness mistake, a birthday.

Life's twists and turns can apparently hinge themselves upon such factors, so say Messrs. Gilbert and Sullivan in their comic opera, The Pirates of Penzance.

Throw in a cast of cowardly cops, aged nannies, a very British Major General, pirates with a conscience, beautiful maids, a Mabel, a Frederic and a Pirate King, and you have a dynamic musical production.

And I haven't even mentioned the excellent musical accompaniment. Theatre Aurora just seems to go from strength to strength.

Loved the cardboard boat that materialized on the set carrying hoards of pirates (or were they carrying the boat?) in the opening scene; it was a wonderful throwback to the television pre-cartoon era, the only thing that could have topped it for me would have been cardboard waves and maybe a cardboard seagull or two.

There were some very strong voices in this musical, not the least of which was Mabel, daughter of the Major General whose upper vocal range knew no boundaries.

The combination of her voice and acting was dynamite. She seemed to exude a coquettish/come hither look which was a lesson to all!

And Ruth. Ruth who lost her youth. Former nanny to

Frederic

How my heart ached for her as she begged the handsome Frederic to marry her in her dueling duet with him.

I myself wanted to petition him on Ruth's behalf, because I felt her course was fair and just, and what else was she going to do, set adrift off the coast of Cornwall?

So what if she wasn't the stuff of beautiful legends, not to mention the fact that by my figuring she had to be some 20 or so years older than him.

Did the words faithful and integrity - maybe not integrity - hold no meaning for him?

Apparently, there is honour amongst pirates after all.

The word 'orphan' and a penchant to only attack ships/crews stronger than themselves render the crew to be softies at heart.

The aforementioned lie that is uttered by the Major General seems to have thrown him into a terrible dilemma with his conscience, and it was obviously not as easy for him as if, say, he'd been a politician.

Anyways, all hell breaks loose when that lie is discovered.

However, enough said, this is a terrific musical, well worth the effort of leaving the comfort of a warm house and combating the frigid February temperatures to gain a little laughter and fun and head out towards Theatre Aurora.

Council should praise, not berate, volunteers

To the editor,

Recently council was given an update regarding the fundraising activities planned for the new Recreation Centre Wellington and Leslie.

The goal given to this coalition of user groups was $2,000,000! This huge challenge represents about 10 per cent of the total cost of the project.

The displeasure and disappointment registered by council regarding their fundraising plans remarkable if not embarrassing.

They were shocked by the details; surprised by the suggested lack of effort; distressed at the results to date.

Councillor Hogg said he was "disgusted" and suggested we not put a drop of water in the pool.

Councillor Buck said, "I thought this would happen. and you haven't disappointed me!"

In some convoluted way. it is implied that the pool was built for the swim club, so they should pay for it.

The reality is that the swim club will utilize the pool less than 10 per cent of the available time.

It was built for us all to use, whether for scheduled programs or general use. The same could be said for the ice rinks, whether it's the Seniors' Skate hours or youth skating schools.

Again, the dysfunctional nature of this council comes to the forefront.

Rather than berate volunteer groups in the community, our politicians groups for their wellness contribution as well as any financial efforts they make.

To their credit, only Mayor Jones and Deputy Mayor Morris offered to help in any way they could.

Ironically it Councillor Hogg who in May of 2005 asked for a staff report regarding council's efforts to generate a plan of action for the naming rights of the facility.

Council specifically excluded the naming rights from any fundraising efforts as they reserved that component for them-

For over a year I have been encouraging council to take some action and investigate available options for naming rights.

They have been unable or unwilling to agree to hold a meeting, generate a plan, advise any efforts or announce any progress.

On March 4th, there is a 'Sneak Preview' of our new Recreation Complex.

This fundraising event is supported by some great local businesses from our community.

I applaud these groups for their contribution to our community as well as any financial support they can generate for the Town.

I encourage everyone to participate, to come out to support our local organizations.

This is another wonderful part of Aurora that we should all enjoy and be You're in Good Company!

Lawn Bowling Club seeks Aurora's help

Bowling Club is the oldest sport club in Aurora.

Lawn Bowling was played by Aurora residents in the late 1890s and early 1900s and around 1900 a lawn bowling club was formed in Aurora and played on a large green to the east of the Anglican church.

In 1930, an application to use McMahon Park was made on behalf of the Lawn Bowling Club and a green was constructed in that location, near Maple and Fleury Streets.

A log building was moved from Pefferlaw and re-assembled in the park in 1934 for the use of the lawn bowlers.

The walls inside the small clubhouse were decorated with regional tournament banners along with a history of the club.

In 1973 the town, with financial assistance from the Aurora Lions Club, constructed a new clubhouse for the lawn bowlers and members of the Aurora Community courts in the park.

The original log clubhouse was moved to Sheppard's Bush in 1974 where it remains.

In May, 1992, as an aid in letting citizens know that Aurora had a Lawn Bowling Club, the members held a three-day Open House and arranged with council to proclaim the period "Lawn Bowling Week in Aurora" and invited the mayor and members of council to bowl.

After quietly catering to residents for more than a century, the Club has fallen on hard times, accordind to President Alan Dean, who appeared before the town's general committee last week.

He said the Club has always been self-sufficient and members maintained their own greens, surrounding gardens and clubhouse, while the town contributed with fertilization, weed control and coring in the fall.

During the past few years the greens have rainfall, water restrictions and a temperamental irrigation system. In addition, the Club lost one of its greens experts moved out of the district.

Dean said the Club was at a crossroads as without additional support from Leisure Services, it may be necessary to ask the Newmarket Club to accept the 53 Aurora members.

He said the reason he was appearing before the general committee was to make council members aware of the Club's situa-

He pointed out how important the Club was to today's seniors who enjoy a more active lifestyle and enjoy a social opportunity and he asked that council provide assistance so members could continue to enjoy their time in the sun and on the green.

the committee agreed to refer the request to staff to discuss with club members subjects including a user pay policy.

Tigers trail half the game but end up beating Blues

Heading into round two of their Junior A Hockey league playoffs, the Aurora Tigers were a little slow off the mark Friday night.

Hosting the Collingwood Blues, Tigers trailed 2-0 by the time the game was half over, but managed to turn things around and escape with a 5-2 win to take the lead in the best of seven series.

Second game was played in Collingwood Tuesday night, but results were not available at press

It was Matt Caranci who started the comeback for the hometowners.

He gobbled up a nice breakaway feed from Brandon Roshko and went in to score the team's first goal and from that moment on the tide began to turn in the Tigers' favour.

By game's end Aurora had scored four more times and ended beating the

The third period saw the Tigers outshoot their opponents 18-4 margin, and that resulted in four goals

Also scoring for the Tigers were Josh McNair and Josh Diamond with a goal and assist each, Matt McGill with the game winner and Mike Martinelli on a big shot from the face-off Adding two assists was Austin Corredato.

Game Three of the series is slated for the Aurora Community Centre Wednesday, March 1st at 7.30 p.m.

Peter Pan

Neighbours oppose retirement home

However, many residents with properties to the north objected to the proposal.

Their concerns included height and massing of the building, blocked sunlight, increased noise, traffic and illumination, minimal landscaping, and loss of property values.

Origin Retirement Communities held an Open House and Public Information Session in early February to discuss the proposed development with the neighbours and company officials said they are committed to trying to satisfy concerns expressed.

Changes include stepping down wings of the buildings closest to the residents to four storeys, reviewing potential lowering of the height of the roof structure and enhancing landscaping along the north property line.

Speaking for the developer, Bruce Hall, a planner, told the audience that Origin was founded for senior independent and full service retirement living with assisted living facilities.

He noted the proposed use would have less impact on the neighbourhood than a seven-storey apartment building for which it was zoned.

John Gallo, representing the Bayview Wellington Ratepayers Association asked council to give very serious consideration and careful planning to the pro-

He said if the project is approved, council should consult with citizens as to the height, mass, colour and material, lighting, buffering, snow removal and delivery times.

Several other citizens also expressed concerns including the impact of the building in a residential neighbourhood, medical waste and emergency vehicles.

They objected to the loss of privacy, potential impact on property values, and the need for earlier consultation with residents.

While there was agreement there was a need for retirement homes, they should be constructed somewhere else.

It was also recommended council change zoning to permit town houses and reject the proposal.

After more than an hour of public presentations, Councillor Evelyn Buck, noted the zoning had been in place since 1994, and that residents who bought homes should have checked on potential uses of the vacant land.

She said a seven-storey apartment building would create more problems than the proposed use, and the town depended on the sale of real estate for revenue, and she favoured the proposal as the best possible use for the property.

Councillor Damir Vrancic said council had a responsibility to the homeowners and noted no one had supported the proposal.

Mayor Tim Jones said that if council rejected the application and the developer appealed to the Ontario Muncipal Board, with the zoning in place, the town wouldn't have much of an argument and would lose all control.

He also expressed concern about the costs of an OMB hearing which would be imposed on all taxpay-

Finally Councillor Ron Wallace suggested the application be accepted in principle and staff work with the ratepayers' association, concerned citizens and the developer in hopes of reaching a compromise.

He also recommended a second public meeting be held and councillors agreed.

Aurora part of sharing information

The Chief Administrative Officers of the six northern municipalities have held a number of meetings as a follow-up to discussions with the mayors at a meeting last June to discuss areas of mutual interest, operational and administrative services, regional issues and provincial issues.

The six municipalities have common interests and have a number of existing co-operative ventures.

Seniors' Column

Norm Weller, one-time town employee, one-time school board trustee, onetime Aurora Councillor, has for many years in many places, organized and participated in Square Dancing events, very often, more than one event weekly.

Now he chairs the Square Dance committee of Aurora Seniors' Association (ASA) with the first ASA square dance scheduled for this Saturday, March 4th, at the new seniors' centre.

When Bill Hands, who will be there, by the way, a leading professional caller, combines his rhythmical calls to music and the love of square dancing seniors, senior hearts quicken, blood stirs, feet find new life and become fleet and quick, and men and women with bright eyes and smiling faces, move with a graceful rhythm as one.

This square dancing event will make beer, wine and pizza available, and because at every square dancing event, some are new to the dancing style, lessons will be available for the rookies.

The real business of dance is to bring people together to have a good time, to look after a partner, or to look for a partner.

A man does it for his loved one, a woman does it for her beloved, and the best couples do it for each other, selflessly.

I believe this is the first square dance that the seniors have organized and it will be the first in a long succession if the interest shown so far is an indication of the future.

The event begins at 7.30 p.m. and will continue to 11

Tickets now available. For more information, call 905-727-2816.

The most recent example is the internal auditor service shared among Aurora, East Gwillimbury, Georgina and Newmarket.

The CAO's have found a benefit in fostering a cooperative working relationship for a number on administrative reasons including information sharing, innovation and identification of opportunities and areas of common interest.

Aurora recently approved a recommendation that the CAO be authorized to meet on a regular basis with the CAOs of the other participating municipalities which also include King and Whitchurch-Stouffville to continue to review areas of mutual interest.

Other areas to be reviewed include emergency services, economic development, human resources, environmental, library services and shared facilities.

Aurora also approved a $5,000 budget as its contribution for 2006 to be covered in the CAO's budget.

RUMOURS AND RAMBLINGS

It was back in July, 1983, when the official opening of the Computer Learning Centre, then located at 220 Yonge Street South in Aurora, took place.

The Centre offered a unique combination of sales, service, consultation, seminars, courses and tutoring.

General Manager Owen Haythorne said he hoped the Centre would serve education, business and the home market.

The Centre selected the Canadian Pell microcomputer built in Mississauga by Orange Computers as its major line.

As well as the Orange computer, the Centre offered the Texas Instrument home computer line and the low priced Timex/Sinclair at $69.95.

As well as providing a classroom centre in the store, the Centre hoped to make arrangements to conduct instruction by contract in other locations.

Anyone remember the Orange computer and/or the Computer Learning Centre?

MAKING THE CITIZENS PAY

It's hard to believe today, but back in December, 1972, Aurora Council, on as 4-3 vote, decided to recover about $200 in legal costs from Kennedy Street residents who unsuccessfully appealed a decision to reconstruct their street.

After the Ontario Municipal Board approved the reconstruction project, about 30 residents appealed the OMB decision to the courts on a point of law, which was dismissed with costs.

The decision to recover the money was made in spite of strong arguments by Councillor Norm Stewart that citizens have a right to appeal council decisions and seeking payment would discourage residents from appealing council's decisions.

Others argued that all taxpayers should not be required to pay for the actions of a few in supporting the decision to recover the costs.

IT WAS A TRADITION

For several years, Vic Paraninfo, Aurora's little shoemaker, had a skate sharpening day in February with proceeds going to the Arthritis Society.

Due to heath reasons, he had to give up his special day but the good citizens of Aurora remembered.

In March, 1990, citizens dropped off $725 at his Yonge Street shop. The money went to the Society.

AN IMPRESSIVE SIGHT

It was February 16, 1996, when about 75 hardy souls braved the cold to walk Yonge Street in Aurora in honour of its 200th Birthday.

As historian John McIntyre pointed out, the walk was significant because it was on February 16, 1796, the day the street was finished to Holland Landing.

Carrying lanterns and candles, it was an impressive sight as the group strolled from the Aurora Museum north on Yonge Street to Aurora Heights Drive and returned with stopovers at Hillary House, the historical plaque at the Lion's parkette at Catherine Avenue and other spots along the way.

On return to the Museum the group enjoyed coffee and hot cider after the walk in the sub-zero temperature.

They wished the street could talk and tell its story from Indian trails, to logs, to mud, horse and buggy, radial cars and automobiles.

Yonge Street had seen it all.

The Candlelight Parade was just one of many events planned during the year to celebrate 200 Years Yonge.

One event was the Longest Street Sale on the Longest Street in the World, which was so successful it became an annual celebration, now in its 11th year, and now known as the Longest Street Festival on the Longest Street in the World.

APPROVAL AFTER THE FACT

Just recently, Councillor Ron Wallace was upset about Aurora's new theatre coming to council to ask for permission to install four posters on the front of the theatre to advertise current and coming movies, after the signs had already been installed.

It was similar in many ways to a time back in February, 1972, when Aurora Mayor Dick Illingworth blew his top at regional council after staff requested authority to place an ad in the local press calling for auto insurance tenders after the ad had appeared in the papers.

Like Councillor Wallace, he wanted to know why it was necessary to have an elected council if the decisions were made and action taken before the item came to council, making council members nothing but rubber stamps.

The big difference was that in the Aurora case it was the sign company who went ahead, believing permission had been obtained, whereas at the region, it was the staff who placed the ad without council authority.

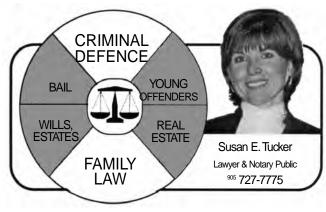

Illingworth suggested the request should be rejected to make fools of the staff, but it was in vain as regional council adopted the resolution that the Treasurer be authorized to call for automobile insurance tenders, after the fact.

CRACKING SECRET POP DEALS

Like Fox Mulder of TV's "X Files", Aurora teenager Nicholas Dodds believed the truth was out there, it just took a while to uncover.

In November, 2003, after a two-year quest, the 15-year-old student was a little closer to finding out how much the school board received for the Pepsi contract.

The Ontario Privacy Commissioner ordered the York board to reveal details of its contract with Pepsi, which provided 30 per cent of sales to schools.

Trinity Anglican hosts World Day of Prayer

Aurora's Trinity Anglican Church will be the host this year for the annual World Day of Prayer Service.

The event gets underway at the Victoria Street church, Friday, March 3, beginning at 7.30 p.m.

Also included in the service will be representation from Aurora United, Christ Lutheran, First Baptist, Our Lady of Grace and St. Andrew's Presbyterian churches.

This year's service, written by the women of South Africa, reflects on the theme "Signs of the Times".

Aurora church-goers will join Christians in more than 170 countries around the world and 2,000 communities across Canada who will gather to pray and act in solidarity with the people of South Africa.

The World Day of Prayer started in Canada and the United States in 1920, and became international in 1922

For further information on Friday's service, contact Betty Innes, at 905-727-1532.

LIBRARY SQUARE PUBLIC MEETING

A Special General Committee meeting will be held on Tuesday March 7, 2006 at 7:00 p.m. at the Town Hall. The purpose of the meeting is to receive input from the public regarding the possible future uses of the Old Town Library and the former Seniors' Building both located on Victoria St. north of Church St.

In addition to any feedback from the public, Members of Council will also be considering a number of options related to these buildings including but not limited to the following:

- 1. Initiate a new review of the expressions of interest utilizing a new decision matrix.
- 2. Accept the recommendations of the Leisure Services Advisory Committee with appropriate amendments.
- 3. Declare the land and buildings surplus and sell them on the open market.
- 4. Undertake a review of the Expressions of Interest utilizing the current decision matrix approved by General Committee.
- Demolish some or all of the buildings on the property to increase parking for the New Library and Church Street School after assessing the need for parking in the area.
- 6. Find a primary tenant and lease the buildings to the primary tenant for $1.00 per year on the basis that the primary tenant would be responsible for all capital repairs including the $377,000 of renovations determined to be required to bring the buildings up to appropriate standards.
- . Use some or all of the facilities for Town purposes.

The meeting will be conducted in an open forum format; therefore speakers will be permitted to address Committee without the need to request delegation status prior to the meeting. A copy of a report on this subject is available at the Town Hall or on the Town's Web Site in the What's New Section. Any other inquiries regarding the Library Square buildings can be directed to Mr. Al Downey Director of Leisure Services 905-727-1375 or through e-mail www.e-aurora.ca.
